

Famous Army commander dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army Chief of Staff Creighton W. Abrams, the general who took command of U.S. forces in Vietnam at a time of crisis in 1968 and oversaw the policy reversal that led to American withdrawal, died early today.

Abrams, who first won fame as a tough tank commander in World War II, would have been 60 on Sept. 15.

The Army announced that he died at 12:35 a.m. EDT at Walter Reed Army Medical Center. Mrs. Abrams and his six children, including two Army officer sons, were at his bedside.

His death resulted from "complications that developed during recovery from surgical removal of his cancerous lung" on June 6, the Army said.

Secretary of the Army Howard M. Callaway issued a statement saying that "the Army and the country have lost one of the great men ... of modern times."

Callaway said Abrams "pointed the way for the Army in years to come."

Gen. Creighton W. Abrams

Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery, the Army said. Arrangements were incomplete.

Of all the top American officials in Vietnam during the dozen years of that complex war, perhaps none was as realistic, pragmatic and forthright as Abrams. Few emerged with their reputations less scarred.

When Abrams assumed command of U.S. forces in Vietnam on July 3, 1968, there were 543,000 Americans in the country, many of them survivors of the Communist side's devastating Tet offensive. South Vietnam's political system was in chaos in the countryside, its military forces were reeling from severe casualties, and President Lyndon B. Johnson had announced he would not run again because of divisiveness in the United States over his war policies.

When Abrams left, five years later, American forces had preceded him.

It was a different kind of assignment — and certainly the toughest ever — for the rumpled general whose public reputation had been built largely on battlefield heroics.

He had been the tank officer who relieved beleaguered American paratroopers at Bastogne in the 1944 Battle of the Bulge and won Gen. George S. Patton's accolade as "the best tank commander in the Army."

Abrams became chief of staff of the Army on Oct. 16, 1972.

On May 28 of this year, the Army announced that Abrams had entered Walter Reed Army Medical Center with a "mild form of pneumonia," and three days later disclosed that he had lung cancer. His left lung was removed July 6.

Released from the hospital, he returned to the Pentagon on July 25. But Abrams was back at Walter Reed on Aug. 21 with what was described as a blood clot in the leg.

U.S.—East Germany

Establish diplomatic ties

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and East Germany today formally established diplomatic relations and pledged "to base the conduct of these relations on the Charter of the United Nations."

The three-minute ceremony in the U.S. State Department was acknowledged by the United States that it has given up hopes for unifying Germany.

Assistant Secretary of State Arthur A. Hartman signed for the United States and Herbert Suess for East Germany. There were no speeches. Only smiles and handshakes were exchanged.

Suess already has been named ambassador to this country. John Sherman Cooper, former Republican senator from Kentucky, is expected to be nominated as the U.S. ambassador.

A terse joint communique said that agreement was reached to establish diplomatic relations after negotiations conducted in a cordial atmosphere between July 15-26.

The two delegations, the communique said, "also exchanged views on the future development of relations between the two States."

"It was agreed that pending the entry into force of a comprehensive consular agreement, their consular relations will be based in general on customary international law on consular relations."

The United States had never recognized the legitimacy of East Germany, officially known as the German Democratic Republic, following its establishment by the Soviet Union in 1949.

But as relations improved generally between Washington and Moscow, more and more Western European countries began accepting the reality of an independent East German state.

With the formal diplomatic link between East Berlin and Washington, all members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization recognize East Germany, except Canada.

Would be hijacker surrenders

BOSTON (AP) — A young black man demanding $10,000 for the poor surrendered today after holding an Eastern Air Lines pilot hostage aboard a jetliner at Logan International Airport, authorities reported.

A state trooper who refused to be identified said the peaceful surrender came after the hijacker had an hour-long conversation with a black FBI agent who "spoke the guy's language."

The pilot, L. E. Whitaker of New York City, suffered minor cuts earlier and was taken off the plane to a medical station for examination.

Whitaker and his unidentified assailant, armed with either a knife or a fingernail file, had been alone on the twin-engine DC9 for more than three hours when a white van pulled alongside and a police car approached the other side. The police car sped away with lights flashing and an airport spokesman announced the hijacker had been taken into custody.

The twin-engine plane, a 7 a.m. shuttle from New York's La Guardia Airport, had just arrived at Boston when the hijacker rushed the cockpit and confronted the pilot with either a knife or a fingernail file, authorities said.

The hijacker, in his 20s, ordered the passengers and all of the crew but the pilot off the plane.

John Stiffler, Eastern airport services manager, said the hijacker then demanded $10,000. The money was spread out on the runway after the man demanded "to see its color."

After this was done, Stiffler said, the man's only comment was, "Give me the money to the poor people of Roxbury," a predominantly black section of Boston.

State police Maj. Edward Keehan said later the money was picked up by police. He did not elaborate.

On sewer district plan

More talk, no action

The City Council renewed discussions Tuesday night on the proposed Sewer Benefit District No. 151, but the lack of necessary funds has kept the council from taking any action.

The council did not renew its promise of $100,000 which was allocated in 1973 toward the sewer project in southern Sedalia this year because of a tight financial situation.

The district, bounded on the north by 28th Street, the east by Lamine Avenue, the south by 32nd Street and the west by Grand Avenue, has come under criticism by property owners in the area.

Most residents wish to establish the district, but the biggest obstacle is a state law which requires payment of the sewers to be assessed according to square footage of property.

George Nix, 2800 South Kentucky, told the council he didn't think it was fair to large property owners to have to bear the brunt of the cost of the district. "I already have adequate sewage facilities and I can't afford to sink $6,000 into a sewage project which I won't even use," he said.

Fourth Ward Councilman Robert Eidson asked Nix if he planned to develop the land "which would pay for sewer service." Nix replied that even if he did subdivide his land, he would have to pay again to provide lateral sewer lines.

Another resident, Frank McAllister, 2801 South Ohio, said he bought his five acres strictly as a home and has no plans to develop his land. "I can't afford to pay for sewers on the basis of square footage. I agree with sewers, but some other way has to be found to fund them," he told the council.

Third Ward Councilman Carl Franklin explained to the two men that the council's indecision has been for the very reason they mentioned. "First, we don't have the money to fund the project and we also realize the hardships a benefit district would have on large landowners," Franklin said.

The council did not take any action on the issue.

In other business, Mayor Jerry Jones said bids will also be opened at the special meeting for insurance on city cars. The present policy expires Sept. 15.

Jones announced that two positions in the street and alley department will be opened under a grant from the Emergency Employment Act. "The government will pay the employee's salaries, Social Security and hospitalization plans until March 15, but then the program can be extended for an additional 12 months."

Council resolution bans rock festivals

The City Council Tuesday night unanimously adopted a resolution banning any future rock music festivals here similar to the one that drew an estimated 150,000 persons to Sedalia in July.

The resolution, requested in a motion at the last council meeting by Fourth Ward Councilman George Dugan Jr., says the music festival "attracted to the Sedalia community large numbers of people, and some of the such persons participated in numerous violations of law and caused considerable disorder and confusion in the community."

It also states that as "a result of the ... rock music festival there have been inquiries and investigations ... by a committee of the Missouri Legislature and a grand jury of Pettis County."

In conclusion, the document says, "Now, therefore, be it resolved by the City Council ... that rock music festivals of the nature and type herein described not be held at any future date in the city of Sedalia."

In a separate resolution, also adopted unanimously, the City Council went on record opposing a utility rate increase request made last week by the Missouri Public Service Co.

The company announced on Aug. 28 that an increase in its natural gas rates, amounting to 1.99 per cent a month, became effective on that date. It was the second time in a month the gas price was increased. It was also reported last week that the Missouri Public Service Commission was considering the company's second request for an increase in electric rates since December.

The council's resolution says, "... there have been several substantial rate increases of utilities in Sedalia in recent years and ... the economy of the Sedalia community is such that the proposed utility rate increase would be a hardship upon the residents of the city ..."

It adds: "Be it resolved by the Council ... that it is opposed to the rate increase and utility rates applied for by the Missouri Public Service Co., now pending before the Public Service Commission in Jefferson City."

A copy of the resolution will be mailed to the commission in Jefferson City, it was reported.

Let the sun shine

A black cloud covered a section of Pettis County early Wednesday morning as this smokestack poured out the smoke just west of Sedalia off Highway 50 and Route MM. The W. J. Menefee Construction

Co. owns the stack, which is part of an asphalt kiln. A company spokesman said that a "poor batch of oil and lime dust" was the cause of the cloud, which spread almost to Green Ridge.

Political caucuses are first on agenda

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A legislative veto session got off to a casual start today as the Missouri Senate convened and then adjourned a few minutes later for political caucuses to assess chances of overriding any of the governor's vetoes on 24 bills.

Attempts to override the governor's vetoes in four areas were expected when the Senate returned at 3 p.m. and the House convened at 4 p.m.

A 2 p.m. ceremony was scheduled for the unveiling of a portrait of former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

All but three senators — Edward Linehan, D-St. Louis; John Schneider, D-St. Louis; and Maurice Schechter, D-Creve Coeur — met the opening buzzer.

The veto session can run 10 days at the most. Facing the lawmakers are 18 vetoes of new bills and vetoes of parts of six appropriations bills.

Sen. Mary Gant, Kansas City, showed up on crutches because of surgery on a toe.

The total cost of the appropriations and new programs were estimated by Gov. Christopher S. Bond and his commissioner of administration, Robert L. James, at more than $14 million.

Bond said he expects override attempts on his vetoes of increased aid to junior colleges, costing $4 million and going up to $8 million the second year; a $3 increase per person in aid to dependent children, costing $3.5 million the first year; pay increases of $3,500 a year to most of the state's judges, costing $1.3 million a year; and $3.5 million in higher education cuts.

The ADC, judges' pay increase and junior college proposals would not be funded until next year. Bond's cuts from appropriations bills totaled $6.2 million.

The University of Missouri's operations budget from state funds was cut by $1.4 million, to $112.2 million, still $2.2 million higher than the governor recommended and $7.5 million higher than the university system received last year.

Lincoln University was cut by $839,000, and bond also trimmed the legislative appropriations for Missouri Southern and Missouri Western State colleges, Central Missouri State University, Northwest Missouri State and Southwest Missouri State.

He trimmed $1 million from the legislative budget, but legislative leaders have indicated that they won't try to override that veto.

Grand jury is convened here

The first grand jury in Pettis County since 1960 started its work Wednesday morning. The nine men and three women jurors met in the Circuit Court jury room at the court house.

Tuesday afternoon Circuit Judge Frank Meyers charged the jurors with looking into the possibility of Missouri laws being violated during the Ozark Music Festival here in July.

Judge Meyer also charged the jury to inquire into the facts of the lease of the State Fairgrounds by Music Productions Inc., sponsor of the three-day rock festival. Judge Meyer told the jury it should also look into the promotion methods of the sponsors of the festival.

Circuit Court clerk Bill Lyles said Wednesday morning the grand jury had not yet subpoenaed anyone.

Sheriff Emmett Fairfax and County Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming were in session with the grand jury Wednesday. The session is expected to last until 3:30 p.m., according to Fleming's secretary, Lynne Ferguson.

The petition calling for the grand jury said the promoters used advertising that encouraged the use of controlled substances. The petition alleged that "opium, hashish, marijuana, LSD, amphetamines and numerous other substances ... were openly and notoriously sold to and used by many of approximately 160,000" persons at the festival.

The grand jury was instructed by Judge Meyer to form a committee of three to inspect the county jail and the condition of the inmates.

According to law, as read by Judge Meyer Tuesday afternoon, other duties of the grand jury include: Investigating the county's levees and construction of drainage ditches, examination of public buildings checking on the use of lights from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. by railroads and the maintenance of railroad switches. The grand jury is also supposed to look into the sale of cigarettes to minors.

This is Judge Meyer's first experience with a grand jury and Tuesday he told the jurors he had sought the help of Judge John Kelly of the St. Louis District Court of Appeals.

The grand jury will make its own schedule, but its report to the court is due Nov. 23. The grand jury may be dissolved at any time by order of the court.

Tuesday afternoon Fleming was ill and Assistant County Prosecutor Robert Liston and City Counselor Robert Fritz stood in for him.

Judge Meyer appointed William Hopkins, 1610 West 13th, as the foreman of the jury. Hopkins, according to Meyer, served on the 1960 grand jury. Other members of the grand jury, chosen by Sheriff Emmett Fairfax are: Paul Moore, LaMonte; Sam Tuck, Houstonia; David G.

At ease now

Kris Kristofferson, with cigarette in hand, talks about putting the finishing touches in Music City (Nashville). He says he is more relaxed than in the recent past. "It's the way you expect me to be like now that I have an old lady and a baby." (AP Wirephoto)

Kristofferson more relaxed

By CHRISTOPHER CABOT
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Finishing a late breakfast of ham and eggs, Kris Kristofferson sat back in a roomy, farmhouse kitchen and lit a cigarette.

Beside him sat his wife and singing partner Rita Coolidge. On her lap their 5-month-old daughter, Casey, was being fed. "You know, everyone says I'm more relaxed now," Kristofferson said. "And maybe I am."

"I kind of think it's the way you expect me to be like now that I have an old lady and a baby. Everyone says how laid back I am."

"I just really have a lucky life right now. I guess that 38 is time to get a little serious. You have to get rid of your teenage anxieties sometime."

"But relaxed? Man, you should have seen me last night."

Last night, Kristofferson, Rita and their band had been working on the final touches of a new album. For a week they had been recording at the studio-farm outside Nashville. They hadn't had time for social visits with some of their best friends.

Before coming to Tennessee, they finished a summer show tour in Japan, Australia and New Zealand. Before that, Kristofferson had acted in Sam Peckinpaw's film "Bring Me the Head of Alfredo Garcia."

Kristofferson walked out of the kitchen, across the lawn to a log cabin which houses the recording studio. He opened a beer and lit another cigarette.

"That tour was fun, but demanding as hell. I imagine there will be a time when I'm not performing, but I hope there is never a time when I will not be writing."

"I don't think I would ever be satisfied if I wasn't writing music. Me and music are sort of mutually rewarding."

"I'm writing as much now as I ever did. It kind of goes in cycles, and I don't know if the songs are as good, better or what."

"You know I still get scared performing. It's not maybe as bad as at first. I don't know if it would be the same if I didn't get scared. It's like getting sick before football games. When I stopped getting sick before games, it wasn't the same. Something was lost."

"Johnny Cash is the same way. I've seen John so scared before a show he was just like this," Kristofferson said, shaking his hand nervously.

Kristofferson played back tapes of the previous night's work. After one song, a rendition of Larry Gatlin's "Rain," he laughed: "Man Rita's voice is so good I'm almost afraid to go on stage with her.

"I'd known her for several months before I even knew how well she could sing. Man, she just gets better and better."

Since marrying a year ago, Kristofferson's work has been mostly with Rita. In March they won a Grammy award for the best country vocal performance by a duo for "From the Bottle to the Bottom." Last year Kristofferson's single "Why Me Lord" won a Gospel Music Association Dove Award.

After production of the new album, Kristofferson is looking forward to a more relaxed schedule this fall. In January he plans to be in another film, a Warner Bros. production written by Joan Dideon and John Dunne.

"From what I gather it's sort of a remake of 'A Star is Born,'" Kristofferson said. "You know, a cat finds the chick who becomes a star."

Manager, film are missing

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — The movie "Deep Throat" was showing when police raided the Spanish Lake Adult Cinema in north St. Louis County last week.

But when authorities tried to serve the manager with a subpoena over the weekend, they found that he—and the film—were gone.

Officials with the county prosecuting attorney's office said William Clyde Houston Jr., 45, of Denver had apparently checked out of his motel and had reservations on two flights to Denver when they checked his home Friday. Missing with him were two copies of the controversial film.

Special Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Donald Weyerrich planned to enter the movie as evidence in a scheduled hearing on a request for an injunction to prevent the film's showing.

The theater was raided Aug. 25 after County Circuit Judge George Schaaf viewed "Deep Throat" and declared it obscene. Houston and his projectionist were arrested and the film was seized by police.

Houston was arrested again the next day after the theater reopened.

Two copies of the movie seized during the arrests were returned to Houston after it was learned they had been improperly taken.

Charges against Houston and the projectionist, Bruce C. Cole, are pending in magistrate court.

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Are those high interest rates holding down business spending? Aren't they supposed to?

The answer to the first question is no, they're not holding down spending. The answer to the second is yes, they should be discouraging spending if the theory is correct.

The Conference Board, an independent research organization supported mainly by business, found in a study just finished that the nation's 1,000 largest manufacturers have sharply raised their capital appropriations.

Between the first and second quarters of the year, it found, these manufacturers authorized the spending of $16.29 billion, a whopping 39 per cent increase.

Since appropriations are authorizations to spend money in the future, the impact of heavy capital spending most likely will be felt for many months to come, when the actual spending will be done.

While the board said it feels an appropriations peak might have been reached, the substantial increase in spending plans during the April-May-June quarter adds another question mark about monetary policy.

The avowed intention of the Federal Reserve Board's tight money policy is to discourage spending, thus bringing the economy down to a noninflationary pace.

The most logical explanation for the surge in appropriations is that many U.S. industries believe they must expand their capacity or make their production lines more efficient.

The largest jump in appropriations, some 125 per cent, was registered by the petroleum industry, with nonferrous metals—non iron, that is—paper and chemicals following in that order.

One reason for expecting a peak has been reached in appropriations, said the board, is that electrical machinery orders are being increasingly affected by troubles in the electric utility industry.

Utilities are among those industries that have been forced to curtail borrowing. Bond issues have been postponed by poor markets and expansion plans have been thwarted by numerous factors, including environmental restraints.

Nevertheless, a separate survey of large manufacturers, this one also conducted by the Conference Board, suggests that capital spending is likely to remain strong in 1975.

It said about 50 per cent of manufacturers responding to the survey expect their capital spending to rise in 1975, 30 per cent expect little change over 1974 levels, and 20 per cent anticipate a decline.

Nearly one-half of those expecting a dip in their capital spending next year—that is, 10 per cent of all the manufacturers surveyed—cite tight credit conditions as a dominant factor.

In a steady breeze, the familiar weathervane on a farmer's barn may not move for days. But a weathervane in most large cities today would probably spin off its pole. Tall buildings lining canyonlike streets deflect the wind and cause gusts to blow from several directions at once.

Alda thinks other son also talented

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Robert Alda has a standard reply when asked the age of his son: "Alan is six feet, two inches."

This is an actor's whimsical ploy for avoiding reference to his age. The record books show that Alan Alda is 38, and his father is 60. But, except for some gray at the temples, Robert Alda looks little changed from when he played George Gershwin in the 1945 Warner Brother biography, "Rhapsody in Blue."

Bob Alda was back in Hollywood for a guest appearance on "Rhoda," CBS' new situation comedy starring Valerie Harper. Between rehearsals he joked about being known as "Alan Alda's father" since his son's success on the "MASH" television series.

Alan Alda is a younger, slimmer version of his father, the resemblance especially noticeable in their smiles.

"When I'm on tour, I sometimes introduce myself as 'Hawkeye's father,'" said Bob. "I couldn't be prouder. My boy's a wonderful actor, but then I knew this a long time ago."

"During the war I used to take him to the Hollywood Canteen when he was 9 years old, and we did 'Who's on First?' and lots of other Abbott and Costello routines."

"I've watched him grow. When he graduated from high school, he thought he would go right into the business. He and a couple of friends had put on a show that raised $3,000 for the school, and he thought show business was easy."

"I told him it didn't always work out that way, and it would be better if he prepared himself by going to college. By the time he graduated from Fordham, he was ready."

Born Alphonso D'Abruzzo in New York City, Robert Alda has experienced other identities, notably from his two most noted roles.

For years he was known as the actor who played George Gershwin. Then, after he originated the role on Broadway in "Guys and Dolls," he was linked to Sky Masterson.

"Do I mind? Of course not," said Alda. "If I can leave behind two such memorable roles, I guess I've done a good job." Alda studied to be an architect at New York University, leaving school in the middle of the Depression.

"I got started in show business by winning an amateur night singing contest," he recalled. "The prize was $25, and my friends were on W.P.A. at $24.75 a week. I figured I had really found something."

He worked in radio, vaudeville, burlesque and theater before signing with Warner Brothers in 1943. "Rhapsody in Blue" made him a star.

Alda has made his home in Rome for the past four years, making Italian films and commuting to the U.S. for TV and stage work.

He warned that he has another son coming along: "His name is Antony, as in Mark Antony. He's 18 and a fabulous musician as well as an actor."

Mayor Daley is back in business

By F. RICHARD CICCONE
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Richard J. Daley is back in business at the same old stand and gives every indication he'd like to be there for four more years.

Daley, 73, returned to his fifth floor office in City Hall on Tuesday for the first time since he suffered a stroke on May 6.

In the four months Daley has been convalescing at his summer home in Grand Beach, Mich., there has been speculation that poor health would force him from politics and the mayor's post he has held since 1955.

But Daley, trimmer by 25 pounds, said if he had to decide now on an unprecedented sixth four-year term, the answer would be yes.

Daley, the nation's top big city political leader for the past two decades, said there were no health problems standing in the way of his candidacy in next April's election. He said his family had left the decision on another term "entirely up to me."

His gait to the lectern for his first news conference in four months was steady and his voice, although gravelly, was strong.

The first question was, would he seek another term in the April mayoral election.

"The doctors said I should try to work not as hard as I did in the past and then ascertain anything as far as the city of Chicago goes," Daley replied.

Pressed further, Daley said, "The state of my health is good, but the mayor's job an arduous job. I'll try it (a reduced schedule) and let you know."

Seconds later, Daley was asked, "If you had to make a decision today, you would run, wouldn't you?"

"You answered it," Daley responded with a laugh.

Another hint that Daley would continue his political career was his characteristic pitch for his party's national convention in 1976.

"I hope to have it here," he said.

Chief of police resigns amid rumors of firing

FLORISSANT, Mo. (AP) — Milton C. Vogel, 56, resigned Tuesday as chief of the 75-member Florissant police department following reports he was to be fired by Mayor James Eagan.

"Florissant has been good to me, and I have reciprocated by trying very hard to give it a good police department," Vogel said in a prepared statement.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat reported that St. Louis Police Lt. Robert Truetken, 40, was selected by Eagan to succeed Vogel when his resignation becomes effective Sept. 15.

Truetken, a 17-year veteran of the St. Louis force, declined to comment on his selection but reportedly resigned from the St. Louis department Tuesday.

Eagan confirmed he had intended to fire Vogel before he offered his resignation. Several infractions of department policy were reportedly responsible for Eagan's dissatisfaction with Vogel.

Two more massacres reported

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — More bodies were dug up today from a mass grave at the Turkish Cypriot village of Maratha, and the Turks reported two more massacres in which they said 158 Turkish Cypriots may have died.

Officers of the United Nations peace force counting skulls removed from a garbage pit outside Maratha said 84 men, women and children had been buried in the grave. Survivors in the village 12 miles northwest of Famagusta said the victims were Turkish Cypriots slain by Greek Cypriot gunmen.

The Greek Cypriot government of President Glafcos Clerides contended that the corpses might be those of Greek Cypriots missing in the district. A Nicosia newspaper said a medallion found on one of the bodies belonged to a Greek Cypriot woman who lived six miles from Maratha and was missing with her 7-year-old son.

The Turkish Cypriot defense minister, Osman Orek, told newsmen he had been informed of two more alleged massacres. He said 96 Turkish Cypriots were missing from villages near the south coast and were believed buried at Palodhia, but Greek Cypriot police there refused to let U.N. investigators search for the grave.

Orek also said that he had information that 62 Turkish Cypriot civilians from Timi, west of Limassol, had been killed and buried in that area.

The Clerides government has called for an independent investigation by the U.N. force and the International Red Cross of all atrocity charges, and Vice President Rauf Denkash, the leader of the Turkish Cypriot community, said he would welcome the inquiry. But nothing has been done about getting it started.

Ecevit said Turkey was determined "absolutely to find a solution" to the political future of Cyprus. "We shall not trust the lives of Turkish Cypriots to the Greek Cypriots," he declared.

He predicted "double Enosis" — annexation of one part of the island by Turkey and the other by Greece — would result if Greece refused to resume negotiations.

Ecevit, whose troops invaded

Cyprus on July 20 and now control the northern third of the island, said his government has already made known that it is ready to negotiate the boundaries of Turkish territory in Cyprus and will begin reducing its troops on the island if the security of the Turkish Cypriots is guaranteed.

Safety and production are major coal contract issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chances of avoiding a crippling nationwide coal strike appear to depend on two critical issues: increased safety for the miners and greater production for the owners.

Despite optimism expressed at the start of negotiations for avoiding a strike, initial contract proposals put forth Tuesday indicate the miners and owners are far apart on these issues.

Union sources said they expect less difficulty in winning big wage increases and other fringe benefits than in obtaining non-money items now that the companies are selling coal at record prices.

The national contract covering 120,000 miners who produce 75 per cent of the nation's coal expires Nov. 12, and government officials are concerned that a long strike would seriously aggravate the nation's economic and energy problems.

United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller struck what appeared to be an uncompromising position on mine safety, declaring that "the lives and safety of American coal miners are not negotiable items."

But Walter C. Wallace, chief negotiator for the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, said if the union expects substantial wage and benefit hikes it will be essential to increase production and productivity.

The industry cited government figures showing that output per man-day fell from nearly 20 tons in 1968 to less than 17 last year.

Miller noted the industry's concern over lost productivity and attributed the loss to wildcat strikes and absenteeism. He said the union would discuss "these serious problems candidly" and suggest solutions.

However, the union chief's safety demands would reduce productivity by raising payrolls without increasing output directly. These demands were for fulltime helpers on "all dangerous mine machinery," education and safety programs for new miners and company-paid fulltime safety committeemen at every mine.

The union did not disclose figures for its wage demands. Miners now earn between $42 and $50 a day depending on their jobs.

Fourth teen is charged in case

A fourth person was charged in Pettis County Magistrate Court Tuesday in the break-in Saturday of a building in the 100 block on South Ohio.

Charged with second degree burglary was Joseph W. Isgriggs, 18, Route 2. Three other persons were arraigned on similar charges in the same incident earlier Tuesday. They are Terry Shepard, 19, 1715 East Seventh, Christopher R. Jackson, 18, 122½ South Ohio, and Miss Vali Zoe Knight, 17, 117 East Third.

All four are accused of taking a truck, two smoking stands, a lamp base, floor lamp and other items owned by James L. Riley, owner of the building.

As of noon Wednesday, Isgriggs, Jackson and Miss Knight had posted $3,500 bonds. Shepard remained in the Pettis County jail in lieu of bond. A Sept. 13 preliminary hearing date has been set by Magistrate Court Judge Hazel Palmer.

Sedalia youth sentenced, put on probation

Larry Wayne Harvey, 17, 1500 South Barrett, was placed on three years probation by Circuit Court Judge Frank Meyer Tuesday afternoon after being sentenced to two years in the state penitentiary.

Harvey and three juveniles were arrested in February for the break-in of the Western Auto Store, 1715 West Broadway. A total of $1,804 was involved in the theft.

Harvey, who had been free on $2,500 bond, pleaded guilty July 29 in court to a charge of stealing more than $50.

Representing the state Tuesday was Robert Liston, assistant county prosecuting attorney. He recommended a two-year sentence for Harvey.

After questioning Harvey and his parents, the judge granted probation for the youth. He is to pay his share of the damages the store sustained in the break-in. He also is to appear in Circuit Court at scheduled times the next three years. His next date to appear on the probation docket is Nov. 25.

Discrimination claim is settled

Discussion of the recent settlement, by a Sedalia Human Rights Commission subcommittee, of a local employment discrimination complaint highlighted the group's monthly meeting Tuesday night in the police conference room of the Municipal Building.

Commission chairman Bob Moore reported that no charges will be brought as a result of the complaint because it was impossible to adequately prove the allegation. However, Moore said, the person who made the complaint has since been employed.

Chairman of the commission's subcommittee on employment, which resolved the incident, is Chandler Prunell.

Moore declined to reveal the identity of the person making the complaint or the party named in the complaint.

The council gave final approval to several ordinances and resolutions which:

- ✓ Gave approval to Missouri Farmers Association Inc. to construct a new facility across the tracks from the present fertilizer blending operation and bulk foods warehouse at 2200 Clinton Road. The council received approval for the project from the Planning and Zoning Commission. Fire Chief Willis Jabas, building inspector Woodrow Garrison and sanitary engineer Gary Johnson.
- ✓ Established a 20-mile-per-hour speed limit in Southwest Village.
- ✓ Prohibits truck or commercial vehicle parking on the west side of Prospect from 16th to 18th streets.
- ✓ Approved changing the name of Klavie Avenue to Rival Avenue.
- ✓ Approved an expenditure of $470 for the purchase of two portable resuscitators for use in police patrol cars.
- ✓ Will put up for bid a lease for landfill property to be used for cropland. The bids must be submitted by Jan. 15, 1975; the present contract expires March 15, 1975.

The council also opened bids for a new hook and ladder truck, and assigned the bids to be reviewed by the fire and water committee, headed by Eidson. The bids were $117,126 (minus a $5,400 trade-in allowance on the present truck) from Seagrave Inc. through Leo M. Ellebracht, St. Louis; and $119,998 from Mack Trucks Inc., Kansas City. The first bid was for 300 to 340 working days before delivery; the second based on 18 to 24 month delivery.

Herb Ford, business representative for Local 124 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW), appeared before the federation at its regular meeting to explain why the campaign was launched. Also participating in the effort to have union members withdraw funds from the bank is Plumbers Local No. 8. Both locals' headquarters are in Kansas City.

Ford explained that the bank has hired subcontractors employing non-union labor in the construction of its drive-in facility at 14th and Limit. He told the federation "we need to show them (bank officials) that

To distribute recreation pamphlets here

Between 8,000 to 10,000 folders containing information on activities sponsored by the Sedalia park and recreation department will be distributed by Boy Scouts throughout the city this weekend, it was announced at the monthly meeting of the Sedalia Park Board Monday night at Convention Hall.

City recreation director Roscoe Righter explained that distribution of such information "is common-place in many communities and helps to keep all citizens better informed as to the times, dates, registration qualifications and other items concerning recreational activities." An additional 5,000 copies of the folder will be sent to the local Welcome Wagon, Chamber of Commerce and other agencies.

Publication of the folder was funded through contributions from Missouri State Bank, Third National Bank, Sedalia Bank and Trust Co. and First State Savings Association, Righter said.

In other business, the board voted to limit non-resident participation in city recreational activities by stipulating that at least 75 per cent of the members of each athletic team engaged in city league action be local residents.

"This means that one out of every four team members can live out-of-town," Righter later explained. "We needed to have a uniform policy regarding this matter."

In a related decision affecting athletics, the board voted to provide free lighting and ground maintenance from May 1 to Aug. 31, but to discontinue the ground maintenance from Sept. 2 to Oct. 1. Also, it was voted to stipulate that no team be allowed to begin playing at the start of a season until it's schedule has been submitted to Righter.

It was also reported that the board is considering purchasing mercury vapor lights for the Liberty Park tennis courts and plans to observe a test of such light at the park Thursday.

"At Liberty Park, the courts are now lighted by standard 750-watt bulbs which cost $6.50 a piece," Righter said. "We have eight poles and three to five bulbs on each pole. We generally have to replace each bulb around 3 to 5 times a year, so the cost adds up pretty fast."

The shatter-proof lights, which are guaranteed for three years, would cost $300 each, it was indicated. Four of the mercury vapor lights, board members were told, would provide twice the lighting produced by the eight fixtures now used at the tennis courts.

The board tabled a proposal to construct a shelter house at Housel Park after receiving numerous complaints from residents in the area. Although no protests were made by residents at Tuesday's meeting, a petition against the proposal, signed by some 20 residents, was presented at the August board meeting.

Board chairman Ben Pummill Wednesday indicated the board plans to investigate the situation further before making a decision.

In their petition, the residents charged that the existing shelter house at the park has been the scene of disruptive, late-night activities. No specifics were given.

The board also discussed the current construction project underway in the park system in which five new shelter houses have been built or are in the process of being completed. One of the structures, at Liberty Park, has been completed, with the rest hopefully scheduled for completion this fall, it was indicated.

Weekend thefts are investigated

Police Tuesday reported two break-ins occurred over the Labor Day weekend in Sedalia, and one involved the theft of $750 worth of equipment from Carpenters Local 1792 offices.

Sue Wollard, 16 Clarinda Drive, reported to police Tuesday morning that the Carpenters Local office at 1701 South Lawrence was broken into sometime over the weekend.

An IBM typewriter worth $500 and a Victor adding machine valued at $250 were reported missing. Entry to the office was gained through a basement window, according to police.

Police are also investigating a break-in at Smith-Cotton High School, although no property was immediately reported missing.

A custodian at the school, Tom Crain, 416 South Wagner, reported to police a window was broken and a hole cut in a shop door to gain entrance to the building, sometime before 11:30 p.m. Monday.

Bank boycott endorsed

The Sedalia Federation of Labor unanimously voted Tuesday night to endorse a boycott against Union Savings Bank.

Herb Ford, business representative for Local 124 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW), appeared before the federation at its regular meeting to explain why the campaign was launched. Also participating in the effort to have union members withdraw funds from the bank is Plumbers Local No. 8. Both locals' headquarters are in Kansas City.

Utility rate increase is restrained

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A Jackson County Circuit Court judge has issued a temporary restraining order blocking a rate increase which would have gone into effect today for the Missouri Public Service Company.

Judge J. Donald Murphy directed the company to delay the increase for seven days. And he ordered a hearing for next Wednesday for the company to show cause why the seven-day injunction should not be made permanent.

The increase would have cost some 125,000 customers in 28 western Missouri counties about $25,000 a day.

Meanwhile, the Missouri Public Service Commission late Tuesday suspended for 120 days the $10.35 million rate hike.

Attorneys for the county Tuesday filed a petition with Judge Murphy requesting a preliminary injunction, a restraining order and a permanent injunction against the 19 per cent electricity hike which was requested Aug. 4.

They contended the commission, in granting the company an 8½ per cent electric rate hike last December, barred the firm from seeking another increase for two years.

Stanley P. Christopher, Jackson County counselor, said Tuesday night he was disappointed that the commission only suspended the proposed rate increase instead of denying it. He said the significance of Judge Murphy's order is that the county now has the initiative in the court system.

"The public doesn't have to depend upon the commission to protect its interests," Christopher said.

Bush chosen to head U.S. China mission

MIDLAND, Tex. (AP) — Republican National Chairman George Bush has been chosen to head the U.S. mission in China, an associate said today.

Mrs. Mary Louise Smith of Iowa, who has been Bush's deputy, will succeed him as head of the Republican National Committee, according to party sources in Washington.

The White House was expected to announce President Ford's choice of Bush for the Peking post later in the day.

In Midland, a one-time aide released a Bush statement welcoming the new diplomatic assignment.

"I am thrilled and excited about this appointment and feel it is the major ambassadorial challenge this country has," the Bush statement said. "I am looking forward to this important and challenging assignment."

Bush, a former Texas congressman and ambassador to the United Nations, will serve as chief of the U. S. liaison office in China.

Bush would succeed David K. E. Bruce, who has headed the U.S. liaison office in Peking since it opened in May 1973. Bruce also served as head of the U.S. negotiating team at the Vietnam peace talks in Paris for a time.

Bush, 50, became chairman of the Republican National Committee in January 1973 after two years as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

A former two-term congressman from Texas, he had strong support among House members and GOP leaders, especially conservatives, for the vice presidential nomination which went two weeks ago to former New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Mrs. Smith, long active in Iowa Republican politics, was elected a member of the Republican National Committee in 1964 and served on the party's Executive Committee between 1969 and 1973.

She is vice chairman of the party's "Rule 29" committee studying proposed revisions in party rules and is a member of the bipartisan committee studying revision of presidential nominating conventions.

Her husband, Dr. Elmer M. Smith, is director of the Medical Bureau of the Iowa State Department of Social Services. They have two sons and one daughter.

Ford met with Mrs. Smith on Tuesday and a spokesman said afterwards that "party matters and party affairs" were discussed.

Judge orders halt in production

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge has ordered a halt in production and sale of a hazardous trouble light but says the free publicity given the light makes paid warning advertisements unnecessary.

Chief Judge George L. Hart Jr. of U.S. District Court issued the permanent order Tuesday against the manufacturer, A.K. Electric Corp. of Brooklyn, N.Y., and 36 distributors and retailers.

Authorities said the light poses an electrocution hazard because the user's hand can squeeze the soft plastic handle and touch metal electrical receptacles. They said one of the lights was believed responsible for the death of a Florida man last fall.

In other business, the federation voted to endorse Democrats Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, Rep. William Randall, James Mathewson faces Republican incumbent the November elections. Eagleton and Randall are both running for re-election. Mathewson faces Republican incumbent Peter Stohr in the race for state representative from the 113th District while Fischer opposes Republican incumbent Harry Walch for presiding judge of the Pettis County Court.

Germans excel in white wines

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

When it comes to wine, Germany is a nation of paradoxes. Statistics show that the average German drinks about one tenth as much wine as the average Swiss, and German vineyards cover less than one fifth the acreage of those in Portugal. But Germany sells more white wine to the United States than France or any other country, about 2.5 million cases a year.

"In one decade, Germany's sale of white wine to the United States jumped 500 per cent," says Peter Sichel, one of America's leading wine importers.

One reason for the success of German wines in America is the matter of availability.

"Take Liebfraumilch which is so well known over here. The quantity is virtually limitless, whereas the white wines of France are definitely limited in America," said Sichel.

Why is Liebfraumilch such a big seller in this country? "Perhaps because the name is more easy to pronounce than those of some other German wines which are tongue twisters," said Sichel with a smile.

White wines in general tend to be popular, perhaps because they don't intimidate the newcomer to the world of wines like the reds with all that accent on vintage.

Even the southernmost German vineyards are as far north as Newfoundland and grapes can be grown commercially only on south-facing hillsides along river valleys. Even then, only a few of the harder varieties of grape can be successfully cultivated, but most of them yield superior white wine like the Riesling, Sylvaner and the Muller-Thurgau.

German wines tend to be lower in alcoholic content than those from the rest of Europe, or the United States for that matter, running from 8 per cent to 11 per cent.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with the makers of combination doors. I think they would do well to place the screens on top instead of the bottom. This would save a lot of pushed-in screens. — MRS. E.L.

DEAR POLLY — I am answering Virginia who cannot clean off the sticky substance that was left on her refrigerator when adhesive-backed paper was removed. She should dampen slightly a cloth with lighter fluid, rub the area. The residue should come off easily. — MRS. A.S.

DEAR POLLY — Virginia who wanted to remove the sticky stuff left on her refrigerator after she removed some adhesive-backed paper will find that kerosene will soften it and then it can be wiped off. Alcohol also will remove this. — ELMA

DEAR GIRLS — After using any of these wash the area with warm soapy water and wipe dry. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — I have found a great place to keep my doll's clothes so they are neat and out of the way. Dad gave me a drawer out of an old dresser. I put the doll clothes in it and then slide it under my bed. It is easy to get out and they are all together in one place. Dad used the rest of the old dresser as a storage place for his small tools. Mom's laundry soap, etc. — BARB.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — I have stopped giving fondue dinners because of problems with the oil. After removing it from the stove the fondue cooks fine for about 20 minutes or sometimes less and then starts popping and spraying a dangerous amount of oil on the table, someone's hands, etc. I switched from cooking oil to peanut oil but it is no better. We have tried different flame intensities, too. Can someone give me the answer? — MRS. A.B.C.

Lipstick developed from available materials

BANGKOK (AP) — Adman-inspired colors like "golden poppy," "pink berry" and "red glory" may soon fade from Thai women's lips because a woman scientist has come up with the humble name "ASRCT".

ASRCT stands for Applied Scientific Research Corporation of Thailand, a government-owned research organization which is finding new uses for materials that are local, cheap, plentiful — and often go to waste.

Rice bran wax is one of those, and that is what ASRCT lipstick is made of. ASRCT has also developed soda pop and wine made of roselle, a variety of hibiscus, and writing paper from kenaf, a fibrous plant also used for snacks.

"We certainly cannot yet call ours 'the rich lipstick with the million-dollar shine,' as they call them in the West," says Miss Sasithorn Wasuwat, wearing a new shade of shocking pink ASRCT lipstick and sitting among her bottles of waste materials. "But soon we can because we are improving our quality."

When that day comes agricultural Thailand can save part of the 10 million U.S. dollars it spends annually on cosmetic imports. The cheapest imported lipstick, from Japan, costs $2.50 here, and an American lipstick sells for $4 to $5.

Sasithorn is head of the pharmacological department of ASRCT. The ASRCT lipstick worn by her female colleagues has a slightly oily sheen.

ASRCT lipstick is a product of over three years of research by Sasithorn herself. It is a new lipstick formula evolved by her with the help of other ASRCT experts.

This new rice bran wax lipstick contains no carnauba wax, which has been the main raw material for lipsticks in Europe and the United States. This is the first time rice bran wax from Thailand's rice fields has been used in cosmetic production.

The primary objective of ASRCT has been to establish

For lips that shine

Sasithorn Wasuwat shows a sample of rice bran wax-based lipstick she developed in her laboratory at Thailand's Applied Scientific Research the applicability of this wax as the basic ingredient in the lipstick formulation, capable of replacing carnauba wax, Sasithorn says.

Corp. Oven in background is used in temperature tests on experimental lipsticks.

Her objective has now been fulfilled. She has found that the product produced in ASRCT factories using rice bran wax compares favorably with most commercial brands.

A graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, Sasithorn says she hopes that the data and information already obtained and to be further collected from the ongoing study will stimulate interest in the manufacture of this material.

Possibilities are clearly indicated of the rice bran oil industry's increasing its profit-making capability through the marketing of its by-product hitherto classified as a waste.

Screening locally available raw materials for use in the manufacture of cosmetics and toiletries is part of the wide-ranging research activities of ASRCT's pharmacy and pharmacology unit. Apart from plants, minerals, essential oils vegetable and mineral waxes and oils, the materials experimented on have included industrial wastes from factories in and around Bangkok.

One other main accomplishment of ASRCT is pulp and paper research. The center's writing paper produced from kenaf pulp is in great demand in Thailand.

ASRCT, established by Royal Act 10 years ago, is charged with carrying out applied scientific research and investigations concerned with national development, national resources and administrative services of the country.

In view of the worsening international paper supply situation and especially of the local shortage growing more acute as a result of rising prices and freight rates, ASRCT has been collecting used papers on streets and dumping places to experiment with ways to turn them into writing paper. The product is now being used in schools and universities.

ASRCT also provides consultancy service to local and foreign commercial firms in Thailand. All research projects are designed to help develop the nation by using available national resources for new products.

Ann Landers

Mystery reader becomes addicted

Dear Ann Landers: I am an average housewife, 31 years old. About a year ago I bought a detective magazine and found it fascinating. I then became incurably addicted to murder mysteries.

After a while I began to think of myself as the victim of every horrible crime I read about. It was quite thrilling to imagine myself being killed in the manner described in every story.

When I told my husband about my fantasies he was horrified and forbade my buying any more murder magazines or books. He says it is sure to affect my mind.

I don't believe I'm becoming mentally ill. Yet I become very frightened at night and feel like a battlefield for warring emotions — fun and fright. Please comment. — O. W. Of Utah.

Dear O.W.: I urge you to seek professional help and learn why you get your jollies out of scaring yourself to death. I sense deep feelings of ambivalence and conflict in your thinking — probably rooted elsewhere.

In the meantime, knock off the bloody books, woman, and read something else.

Dear Ann Landers: You frequently offer advice to spouses of alcoholics and drug addicts, but how about a word to people who are married to diabetics? It's just plain hell and I don't know how to deal with it.

My husband has been a diabetic for 18 years. From the beginning he has refused to stay on any kind of diet. Certain foods and beverages are poison to him but he eats and drinks what he pleases. I prepare his meals according to doctor's orders but what good does it do when he sneaks forbidden food at every opportunity?

This man has made such a wreck out of me that I had to go to a "head shrinker," as he calls it. I quit going because I figured that HE was the one who needed one, not me. (Of course, he wouldn't go.)

Last year the crazy fool was hit with an insulin reaction and almost died in the ambulance on the way to the hospital. He pulled through but it didn't teach him a thing. He still eats and drinks whatever he pleases.

Is there an organization for spouses of diabetics like Al-Anon, for people who must live with alcoholics? I can't leave this man because I have two sons and an 80-year-old father who need a home. I need some advice. — Blue In The Face In Springfield

Dear Blue: Please try Recovery, Inc. Look in the phone book and go to the next meeting. You need the emotional support of individuals who are coping, successfully, with a variety of continuing problems.

Had you stayed with the "head shrinker," he might have helped you realize that nobody can keep a self-destructive person from killing himself. You have the power to run YOUR life, but not your husband's, and that's where your head should have been these past 18 years.

Dear Ann Landers: Wanted: A father who is willing to "train a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it."

Sign my letter — A Mother Who Is Failing

Dear Mother: If your husband won't help you, get a professional counselor who will. And don't feel you are failing. Some kids go haywire in spite of good training from both parents. Why? That's the 64-million-dollar question and I have no answer.

Canada protests; deserter released

PEACE ARCH INTERNATIONAL PARK (AP) — Ronald J. Anderson is back on his adopted Canadian soil and the American Army deserter vows never to return to the United States "until I'm sure there's amnesty."

"It's a great thing to know that a nation of 20 million people is behind you," Anderson said after crossing the border into the land he now calls home and the arms of his wife, Marion.

He was released late Friday after spending a week in the stockade at Ft. Lewis, Wash., awaiting court-martial on charges of being absent without official leave. His freedom came after a formal protest and a request for his return by the Canadian government.

Anderson had been arrested last Saturday by U.S. border guards at this heavily traveled crossing in an incident American officials later admitted occurred "a few yards over the Canadian border."

After that admission on Thursday, Canada asked for Anderson's return. On Friday, the U.S. State Department said it had granted Canada's request.

Anderson, 31, said he learned about 2 p.m. he would be released. Less than five hours later he was free in Canada, where he has landed-immigrant status. He plans to apply for Canadian citizenship in another month.

"I'll never go back until I know it's safe," Anderson said. "Even though the attitude in the United States might be softening, you know the military is going to continue to enforce the law the way it sees it."

Asked if an amnesty declaration would bring many American deserters or draft-evaders back, he said, "I don't think so. I think it would be used mainly for visits. I wouldn't go back to live. Anyway, President Ford will probably declare unconditional amnesty for everyone except Ronald Anderson."

Anderson was driven the 150 miles from Ft. Lewis to the U.S.-Canadian border by Ray Anderson, the Canadian consul-general in Seattle, who said he was informed he had to pick up his man only an hour before taking custody.

"The U.S. reaction was actually extremely rapid," he said.

Consul-General Anderson called the arrest a "inappropriate apprehension" and a violation of Canadian sovereignty.

"What happened was that a number of people felt they had found someone and were going to apprehend him," the consul said.

He said he was sure U.S. guards hadn't intended to violate Canadian territory.

Anderson, a carpenter in Mission, B.C., said he had learned while being held at Ft. Lewis that members of his union local had collected money to help gain his release.

An Army report to the State Department said Anderson had been absent without leave for 10 months when he was captured and court-martialed in October 1968.

Anderson escaped from the Ft. Lewis stockade again that November and fled to Canada. He said he had crossed back into the United States several times to visit his mother, Betty Peterson of Poulsbo, Wash.

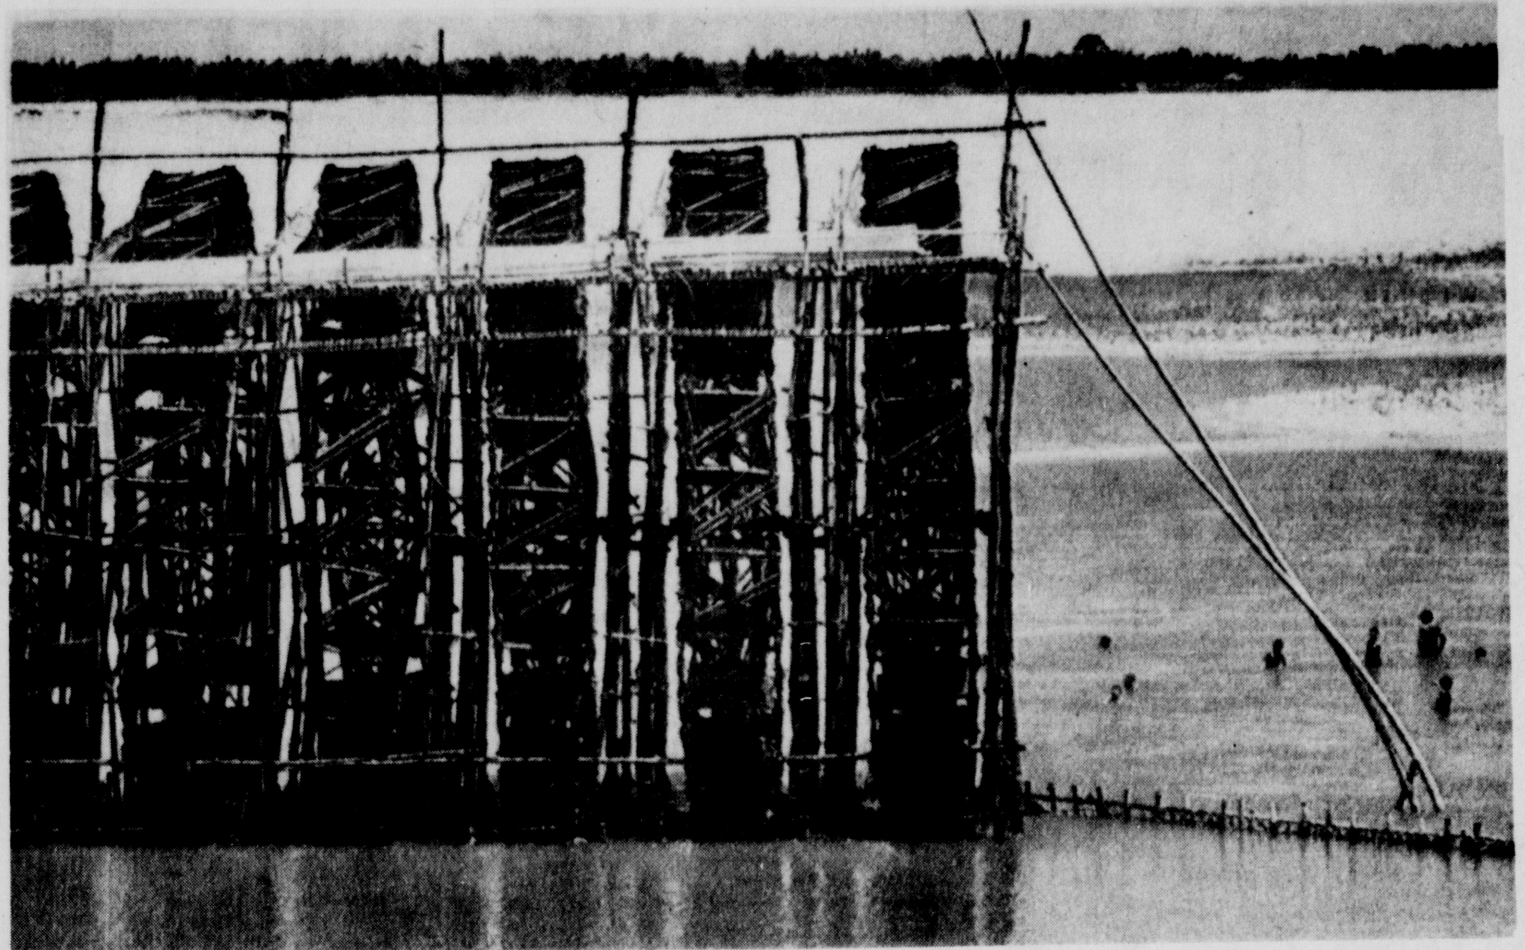

On Saturday, however, customs officials checked his Canadian license plate through the U.S. National Crime Information computer system.

"I was detained at the border," Anderson said. "They opened the trunk. They told me to come into the building."

"They asked for identification. I produced my B.C. driver's license. A U.S. customs officer said, 'Give me your wallet.' I said I didn't have to give up my wallet. I told him I retained some right. He said, 'I'll read you your rights.'"

"I jumped up and ran for the Peace Arch. I thought I had crossed the border, but they caught me. I heard someone say, 'Don't take any pictures.' I hollered, 'Take all the pictures you want. These men are not arresting me legally.'"

It apparently was a picture showing the arrest north of the Peace Arch which straddles the border that helped convince the State Department to release him.

Firm promoting 'super' motor oil

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — A small petroleum firm is promoting a new "super" synthetic motor oil for autos it says can last up to 10 times longer than conventional lubricating oil.

Pacer Petroleum Co., of Houston, Tex., says its sales are "growing like weeds." But Detroit's Big Three auto makers say they aren't ready for an oil change. They are making tests of their own, however. And they are interested.

Pacer's Sol Levy says cars using the firm's EON E-11 synthetic oil can go 40,000 miles between oil changes. U.S. auto makers recommend conventional oil changes every 3,000 to 6,000 miles.

Levy also says E-11 provides better protection for engine parts, causes less engine wear and results in better fuel economy than petroleum oils.

However, E-11 sells for $5 a quart, compared with less than $1 a quart for conventional oil. But Levy says in the long run it is less expensive because E-11 users buy one-tenth as many quarts over 40,000 miles of driving.

Outside the auto industry, synthetic oils are not new. Germany developed them during World War II and the aircraft industry has used them for years.

About a half dozen companies market such oils. Pacer is the first to offer the product nationwide for auto owners.

Levy estimated more than 250,000 cars now use the product, and the company expects $6 million in sales this year.

"It's just unbelievable the way it's taken off," he said.

Pacer is advertising heavily in Detroit, a market which can make or break a new auto product. Ads plug E-11 as the oil used in Houston police cars and boast the oil "never needs to be changed."

The auto makers, while not rejecting Pacer's claims outright, express skepticism about the "super oil." They say synthetic motor oil needs more testing before the firms can either reject or recommend it for use in their cars.

Truck load of marijuana seized

BONNER SPRINGS, Kan. (AP) — A truck load of marijuana was seized in Bonner Springs early today and two men were arrested. Officers said at least two other persons were sought in connection with the seizure.

Spokesmen for the Kansas Attorney General's office and the Wyandotte County Sheriff said undercover agents had arranged to purchase up to 10,000 pounds of freshly harvested marijuana. The amount recovered from the 16-foot truck, however, was believed to be substantially less than that.

The marijuana was seized and the arrests were made in a parking lot in front of the Agricultural Hall of Fame.

Electrosleep therapy is introduced in the United States

By C. G. McDANIEL
AP Science Writer
MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — "It feels like a cap shrinking on my head."

A young woman spoke drowsily to a psychiatrist as she fell asleep with electrodes attached to her forehead and behind her ears while low-level electric current passed through her head.

A patient at St. Mary's Hill Hospital, the young woman was undergoing a treatment called electrosleep therapy.

Jackie Swenby, a nursing assistant at the hospital who was experiencing the technique for the first time, said: "It feels wonderful."

"I feel like I could go to sleep," she said, as she lay back in a reclining chair and did appear to fall asleep.

A reporter trying it felt tingling sensations in his scalp and cheekbones, then in his fingers. Progressively his entire body felt relaxed. A persistent pain in his left shoulder disappeared and did not return until the next day.

The term "electrosleep" is a bit misleading because the object is not to make patients sleepy. Some do fall asleep as the result of the mental and physical relaxation the treatment induces.

Electrosleep therapy was developed in the Soviet Union and has been used there for more than 25 years, but only recently has it been introduced in the United States.

A few dozen U.S. hospitals now offer electrosleep, generally in conjunction with other forms of psychiatric treatment such as medication and psychotherapy. A typical patient may have 10 to 15 electrosleep sessions.

At St. Mary's Hill, a private psychiatric hospital that began using electrosleep in March 1973, about 20 patients a day receive the therapy. Sessions last 30 to 45 minutes.

Dr. Charles W. Landis, a psychiatrist who is medical director and chief of staff at the hospital, expresses guarded enthusiasm about the treatment for certain problems.

"We are impressed with some therapeutic responses that have been dramatic," he said, but some patients do not respond at all. "We have concern that a thing like this can be a faddish thing."

Electrosleep "has an extremely enhancing effect on psychotherapy," Landis said, explaining that it seems to relieve patients' inhibitions so they can more easily talk about their problems.

The psychiatrist said especially good results have been obtained in treating patients suffering from neurotic depression accompanied by anxiety and tension.

It also has been useful in treating alcoholism, and some hospitals have found that it relieves migraine headache.

Landis said about 80 per cent of the patients treated for depression are helped by electrosleep. After about five treatments psychiatrists can tell whether or not a patient will benefit from it.

There is no danger to the patient in electrosleep therapy, say doctors who have used it. The current, from a battery-operated machine, is one-fifty thousandth of that used in electroshock treatment, which is sometimes used for psychiatric disorders.

Because patients do not suffer memory loss after electrosleep, as they often do after electroshock, it can be administered on an outpatient basis. Some patients stop at a hospital for therapy en route to work.

Researchers are not sure why electrosleep works, or how.

Dr. Saul H. Rosenthal, a psychiatrist at the University of Texas medical school at San Antonio, said studies he has done "seem to suggest" that the effects of electrosleep are at least partly due to stimulation of the hypothalamus or pituitary gland in the brain and an alteration in hormonal secretion.

Electrosleep provides no long-term help for psychotic patients — the most severely disturbed — although it can relieve some of their tension and anxiety, Landis said.

Judgment is reversed by appeals court

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A $50,000 judgment in favor of the widow of a man who was killed in a 1970 auto accident on a highway under construction was reversed Tuesday by the Missouri Court of Appeals.

The court ruled that insufficient evidence was found to prove that the death of Robert Gottman of Downing, Mo., was caused by a lack of signs warning motorists of hazardous conditions along the road.

The accident occurred on U.S. 136 near Downing.

Ex-POW planned Senate campaign while in captivity

By JOHN T. WHEELER
AP Newsfeatures Writer

SPEARFISH, S.D. (AP) — The words are lean and direct, the style as austere as the Dakota Badlands.

"Hello, I'm Leo Thorsness. I'm running against George McGovern for the U.S. Senate. Thank you for letting me come and talk to you tonight."

The candidate leans lightly on his hawthorn cane, a legacy of Vietnam War combat and torture sessions during six years in the Hanoi Hilton prison camp.

He pauses and looks down at the toes of his black cowboy boots trimmed in gold and blue. Perhaps 10 seconds pass. He shoves his right hand deep into the pocket of his maroon, western cut double knit slacks and sweeps the crowd with his hard, almost cold eyes.

"With your help, I'm going to Washington and do what I can to cut down big government and get the government off your farms."

The tone is level. The voice almost soft. So soft a man 15 feet away can be heard to mutter: "And git old George good." The man looks almost pleased, then turns back to the two-handed job of swatting away mosquitos swarming to the attack much as Thorsness and his fellow fliers attacked North Vietnamese targets years ago.

Curiosity as much as Republicanism had brought out many in the small crowd to see Thorsness, who turned his back on security and certain success in the Air Force for a high risk, starchily conservative challenge to liberal Democrat McGovern's seat.

In South Dakota, some call it the "war of the bomber pilots," since both men flew combat missions — McGovern during World War II. Thorsness says with grim determination that the similarity ends there, that there is no camaraderie possible between the two politically opposite men.

Over punch and cookies inside the farm home of Asa Queen after the speech, there was less than unanimity over the Thorsness campaign.

The candidate's quiet fervor in denouncing big, free spending government; America's moral decline; the dangers of socialism, and the four A's — atheism, abortion, acid (drugs) and amnesty for war resisters — is familiar conservative fare here.

***

But there were questions at Asa Queen's that night which have been repeated over the state. What is it that really makes Leo Thorsness run? Is it simple political quest for office? Or is it the quest of a man seeking to vindicate his role as a combat pilot in America's most divisive foreign war by taking on the most prominent antiwar critic?

Thorsness denies publicly that he seeks vengeance. He says it is not true he decided to go after McGovern's seat because of McGovern antiwar speeches, played over and

A new mission

Running for U.S. senator for South Dakota, Vietnam veteran and ex-POW Leo Thorsness has turned his back on security in the Air Force for a high risk challenge to George McGovern's seat. He campaigns with an almost purist conservative stance, with hints of evangelical earnestness and promises of hard times as the cure for national ills. "I believe Americans are tough enough to make the necessary sacrifices if they know what has to be done," he explains. (AP) over again in the POW camps as part of an attempt to destroy the morale of captured American fliers.

After their release, many POWs made no secret of their belief that the antiwar movement and McGovern's presidential campaign prolonged their captivity and the war.

But if there is some highly personal revenge motif running through the campaign, non-partisan political analysts believe it is only one of many threads. Although some of Thorsness' campaign rhetoric has been described as over-simplified and only brushing the edges of the hard issues facing the nation, he has built an image of a man with a profound sense of mission. He constantly hammers at the theme: Something is wrong, badly wrong, in the United States and must be changed if the nation is to survive with its democratic heritage and institutions intact. Beneath the quiet earnestness there are hints of deep alarm and evangelical fervor.

Thorsness in this sense is only one among many POWs who returned home after prolonged captivity and found themselves uneasy and even alarmed with what they saw as national trends. A half-dozen decided to run for office — Congress, governor of New Mexico, the U.S. Senate. Some were Democrats, others Republicans. Winners and losers in the primaries have been evenly divided.

There are accusations that Thorsness is a carpetbagger and an opportunist. The first is a bit hard to toss off, since he lived in South Dakota only three months before his discharge. Why did he rush in here to challenge McGovern instead of returning to his native Minnesota, where he might have built a political organization over the next two years and challenged liberal Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey?

Thorsness says he simply wants to run now, period.

***

But some, even in the McGovern camp say privately it is a little hard to make opportunism stick, since Thorsness seems politically unsophisticated — even to the point of naive. A staunch Republican said, "Thorsness couldn't say the damn word things he does if all he wanted to do was beat George McGovern any way he could." One Thorsness aide, uneasy about some of his boss' political stands, says: "Honest? Honest to a fault."

Beef and wheat are the biggest industries here, and farmers and ranchers are frightened by the seemingly chaotic movement of prices. One farmer said, "I'd take 30 cents a bushel less for my wheat if we could just get some stability. And cattle, I've taken a terrible beating in the last year."

Stability translates here into some sort of government protection or guaranteed prices. Thorsness, knowing he does so at his own peril, argues strongly against government interference with free enterprise. He would favor significant government intervention, he says, only at the last moment and only if it meant keeping farms and ranches from going under economically.

Inflation is perhaps the deepest worry for South Dakotans. Thorsness makes the stock conservative promises to seek cuts in the federal budget and bureaucracy.

***

Leo Thorsness was born 42 years ago in Walnut Grove, Minn., hard by the South Dakota border. A farm boy, he attended a one-room school. After high school he entered South Dakota State with the vague intention of studying forestry and the certain knowledge it would be a grinding four years of work to pay his own way.

Thorsness insists he is not running on his military record or the fact that he was a POW. But many of his speeches start, "I'm not running as an ex-POW ..." which lets him have it both ways. Of his war record he says little publicly, but his campaign literature includes pictures of his homecoming and a list of awards including the Silver Star, the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Purple Heart besides the Medal of Honor.

A hand for the candidate

Campaigning in Sioux Falls, S.D., Leo Thorsness shakes hands with townsfolk in the shopping mall. Thorsness is running against George McGovern for the U.S. Senate, making a conservative challenge to the liberal Democrat

McGovern. Thorsness made a good start with his upset victory in the GOP primary, but the campaign is still so young that many call the race a toss up at this stage. (AP)

Thorsness' upset primary victory in bygone days probably would have placed him in a commanding lead for the general election in November. The Republican party is still king in South Dakota as far as registration goes, but it has shown a strong capacity for defeat in recent years. Not only has McGovern won twice, but, while the state went decisively for President Nixon in 1972, it also elected Democrats as the other U.S. senator, governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general and other important political posts.

As the blistering days of summer draw to a close, the popular guessing seems to hold that Thorsness' smaller, less sophisticated and underfinanced campaign is in trouble that may prove fatal.

McGovern, if re-elected probably will be the second ranking Democrat on the Senate Agricultural Committee, a fact not lost even on those registered TOP. Some Republicans say while they might like to vote for Thorsness, his no-compromise stand on a significant role for Washington in agriculture denies some of the economic realities faced by farmers and cattle raisers in this state. Labor is waging a vigorous and apparently effective campaign against the Republican contender, but its membership is relatively small.

***

The campaign is still so young that many call the race a toss up. Some who see Thorsness a little short of that mark are in his own camp. One who dabbles in Butte County politics said, "I sure hope Leo has a better chance than I think he has. We need him. Oh, he's up from the primary, but he's still running 40-60 behind old George."

Many agree with another assessment made in the gathering darkness at Asa Queen's farm near Spearfish. One farmer holding the turquoise and silver slide holding his string tie and said, "Watch beef and wheat prices. If they're up in October and November, the Republicans will vote their consciences. If they're down, they'll most likely vote their pocket-books."

Says gun control answer

By JOE LAPOINTE
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Charley Mathis took off his shoes last week and was shot to death when a friend didn't like the smell of his feet.

It went down on police records as a fatal shooting prompted by "allegedly odiferous feet."

Joe Peoples, 64, tried to stop a man stabbing a mongrel dog on an inner-city sidewalk.

"Shut up old man, or I'll kill you," the stranger said. An hour later Peoples was dead, knifed in the back.

These two cases were among 516 homicides committed in Detroit this far in 1974, 27 above last year's record pace, police said. There were 751 killings in 1973, an all-time record in this city of 1.5 million that has come to be known as the nation's murder capital.

Slayings involving out-of-townners have been rare, and convention officials say business is up.

A Wayne State University study cosponsored by the city reveals the typical killer differs little from his victim.

The report, covering about 500 murders in 1972, shows:

More than 75 per cent of murderers were male; two-thirds of the slayings followed a quarrel with a relative or acquaintance; 63 per cent of the murders were committed with guns, often the inexpensive "Saturday Night Specials"; most of those involved on both sides of the gun were black males, with half of them single and 40 per cent unemployed.

"But these conditions are not unique to Detroit," said Dr. G. Marie Wilt, who made the study. "You find them all over the country. The problems are socio-economic."

Police statistics show that of the 432 homicides through July of this year, three-quarters were committed with guns and half of the killers knew their victims.

Why Detroit?

The most popular reasons advanced for the homicide rate — auto assembly line pressure, poverty, and narcotics — are belittled by some experts.

Dr. Wilt says Detroit, with a white-black ratio of about 50-50, differs little from American cities with lower murder rates. She cites dope in New York, factories in Pittsburgh and poverty everywhere.

Dr. Emanuel Panay, a psychiatrist who has studied violent death, says the answer is "simple and obvious. Guns."

"In England, if you get mad at someone you choke them with your hands. The aggressor may lose his temper, but he regains it before he kills his victim."

Dr. Panay said gun-buying increased sharply following the 1967 riot here in which 43 died. He feels there is an upward spiral which is unstoppable without gun control.

Rain has helped corn little

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Missouri's corn crop remains in poor to fair condition despite considerable rainfall last week, according to the state Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

The Service said three days on the average were suitable for field work last week, with rains continuing to improve soil moisture and two thirds of the state reporting an adequate supply.

The service said the corn crop was 56 per cent dented, 13 points ahead of the previous week and equal to last year, but behind the five-year average of 70 per cent.

Grain sorghum is 82 per cent headed, seven points behind a year ago.

Soybeans are in fair to good condition, with 72 per cent of the crop blooming and 62 per cent setting pods. Last year the figure was 79 per cent at this time and the five-year average is 82 per cent. It left the possibility that some beans might not mature before frost.

Cotton is in fair condition with two per cent of the bolls open.

The third cutting of alfalfa is 61 per cent complete, nine points over a week ago but 20 behind last year.

The language of the ancient African kingdom of Meroe, which flourished between 600 B.C. and A.D. 400, was written in hieroglyphics that showed a strong similarity to the Egyptian.

By PETER WEAVER

If you're living on a fixed income in retirement or are working but wages aren't keeping up with the cost of living, you've probably found that a family budget that worked last year isn't working now.

One reader sent in a sample budget that's probably typical for those who are feeling the crunch between rapidly rising costs and no-rising or slow-rising income. The reader says she has $860 to pay monthly bills for two which come to an average of $767 (this doesn't include sporadic or annual bills such as annual physical and dental checkups, auto licenses, insurance, household repairs and taxes). Here's her monthly expense list:

Mortgage, $315; car (payments, gas), $150; utilities, $60; drugs, $10; food, $170; liquor, $15; dinner guests, $7; gifts (family), $15.

With this monthly list totalling $767 to be paid out of $860 income, the one-shot annual payments such as insurance, medical expenses and taxes come as budgetary disasters. There just isn't enough money to go around and the family gets behind on bills and eventually into serious debt.

What can be done about this? Where can you cut back so there's enough reserve to handle the sporadic special expenses? First, those annual payments for taxes, insurance and the like should be put into the monthly budget on a one-twelfth cost basis. For example, if insurance costs $240 a year, put $20 a month for insurance in your budget. Have the money set aside so it will be there when the insurance bill has to be paid. Same goes for medical, dental, taxes and others.

Mind your money

1973 budget won't work now

All right, you say. This budgeting for annual and sporadic expenses puts you over your monthly income. Then what? This shows that you have to start cutting your monthly expenses and/or figure out ways to increase your income through part-time jobs.

In this particular over-extended budget, the monthly mortgage payment of $315 is too high. It's out of line for a monthly income of only $860. As a rule of thumb, your monthly housing costs shouldn't exceed one-fourth your income (this includes rent, mortgage, home insurance and maintenance). Unfortunately, low-income families often have to budget higher than one-quarter monthly income for housing in order to get a decent place to live.

In this case the monthly housing shouldn't exceed $250 and would be better at $225.

You either move to a lower cost home or, if that's next to impossible, you have to cut elsewhere. Paying $150 a month for car payments and gas is ripe for cutting. If the car isn't being used for work, then you drive less — much less. If the car is being used for work, then try every conceivable angle to work a car pool.

For only two people, the $170 monthly food bill could be trimmed. Buy store brands only. Get high nutrition value foods. Things like powdered, non-fat, dry milk can give plenty of protein for the money. Get nutrition and money-saving food booklets from your local or county cooperative extension service (usually found under county government listings in the phone book).

The $15 monthly "family gifts" item is obviously aimed at a gaggle of grandchildren. Why not give "time" gifts? Take a grandchild to the park, a museum or a free concert. By giving of yourself instead of material things, the child may well prefer it and you save $15 a month. Everybody benefits.

On the income side, start looking for part-time jobs where your skills can be put to use. There's a great demand for "home health aides" to take care of the elderly, sick children and other shut-ins.

Theater resumes showing film

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Liquor and Amusement Control inspectors seized one print of the controversial film "Deep Throat," but the theater resumed its showings by using another copy.

W. Yates Webb, liquor and amusement control director, said Municipal Court Judge James F. Karl had determined the film to be in violation of the city's anti-obscenity ordinance. Webb's office has directed to seize the film last Friday.

Webb said no effort would be made to seize the copy until a court ruling on the legality of the film the city has already obtained.

A hearing on the seizure was continued until Sept. 24.

The Incas had no knowledge of the wheel, no draft animals and no beasts of burden other than the llama — strong enough to transport 80-pound loads over Andean trails but too frail to carry a man, National Geographic says.

Dean serving jail sentence

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Dean III has begun serving a minimum one-year jail sentence for his part in covering up the Watergate scandal, but his role as a major source of Watergate evidence is not over.

The former White House counsel will testify in the Watergate cover-up trial scheduled to begin Sept. 30. Federal officials said he will remain available for any other investigations by Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

While Dean continues to provide evidence, he will remain in the custody of U.S. marshals to whom he surrendered Tuesday.

Dean was driven to the U.S. courthouse by a deputy marshal who had picked up the 35-year-old disbarred lawyer at a Washington hotel. Before formally surrendering to Chief U.S. Marshal George K. McKinney, Dean walked through a throng of newsmen.

He declined comment when asked if former President Nixon should be criminally prosecuted along with six men now charged in the cover-up case.

Asked if the felt vindicated by the June 23, 1972, presidential tape made public just before former President Nixon resigned, Dean answered, "I'll let you answer that yourself."

Justice Department spokesman Horace Webb said Dean was processed for his one-to-four year sentence like any other prisoner. He was photographed, fingerprinted and was to be issued a fresh set of prison denims to wear.

Dean pleaded guilty last Oct. 19 to a single count of conspiring to obstruct justice in the cover-up and was sentenced Aug. 2.

Dean was the star of the Senate Watergate Committee hearings last year where he became the first person to directly accuse Nixon of involvement in the cover-up. He had been fired by Nixon on April 30, 1973.

When he completes his role as a Watergate witness, Dean is likely to be transferred to a minimum security facility in Lompoc, Calif. Dean's wife, Maureen, lives in their recently purchased house near Beverly Hills, Calif., along with her ailing mother.

Pressure likely to increase on foreign exchange controls

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense officials say the French government is putting "staggering pressure" on four NATO countries as they decide whether to buy a new French or U.S. jet fighter.

At stake are contracts potentially worth billions of dollars, prestige and influence in Europe, large numbers of jobs in two ailing economies, and each nation's hope for balance-of-payment benefits.

The Netherlands, Belgium, Norway and Denmark are to buy about 350 planes to replace aging U.S.-built F104 Starfighters.

The French entry is the Mirage F1M53, while the United States has two candidates, both lightweight fighters competing also for selection by the U.S. Air Force. The U.S. planes are the YF16, built by General Dynamics Corp., and the YF17 of the Northrup Corp.

A struggle for this business has intensified on both sides for months.

For the United States, a decision for the U.S. plane could reduce the cost of up to 600 lightweight fighters for the U.S. Air Force by permitting a wider spread of production and development costs.

It also could open the way for sales to other NATO countries.

For France, a decision for the Mirage would help stave off unemployment in its aircraft industry and overcome balance of payments problems growing out of high import prices for fuel and other goods.

Late last week, the French foreign ministry invited defense ministers of the four countries to Paris on Sept. 8.

Pentagon officials said the French have persistently emphasized to the four countries that, like France, they are small European nations who should stand with France against dominance by the United States.

There also have been reports of strong French economic pressures, including warnings to Belgian businessmen that they would lose French orders unless the Mirage was purchased.

U.S. authorities close to the situation say Belgium leans toward the Mirage, but that informal indications are that the Netherlands, Denmark and Norway favor a U.S. plane.

HUD financing may be resumed

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development may resume financing of a Kansas City housing project it was ordered to stop assisting a year ago, the 8th U.S. Court of Appeals ruled Tuesday.

The appeals court said HUD should submit an alternative plan and continue financing the East Hills Village, a low-and moderate rent housing development.

A Kansas City federal district judge prohibited HUD financing of the project in 1973 after black and white neighbors complained it would cause an all-black area.

The appeals court also ordered the district court to find a remedy to benefit both project residents and those in the surrounding community.

Economy and job security replace 'blues' of previous GM strike

By TERRY RYAN
Associated Press Writer

LORDSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Beyond the chain link fence and acres of yellow-lined parking lots, the fastest, most automated automobile assembly line in the world stood silent and unmoving.

Dan Dearing and a half dozen other men were picketing the east gate of the plant. But the picketing was casual. Dearing, in fact, sat on the hood of his car, talking quietly in the warm summer night.

"Look," he explained earnestly. "I got a house now, a house and a mortgage and a baby. It makes a difference. I didn't have them two years ago. Besides, being hotheaded never got us anything either."

Two years ago in March, Local 1112 of the United Auto Workers struck Lordstown's General Motors complex of Chevrolet van and Vega plants. It was a militant, attention-grabbing strike. On the table were local grievances and contract language. But sociologists said the problem was much deeper — a phenomenon they called the "blue collar blues."

Now, this July 12, about 7,800 members of Local 1112 went on strike again. Grievances were back on the table. But the attitudes and atmosphere had changed. Talk about the "blues" — the monotony of assembly line work and the dehumanizing effects of the pace set by machines — had turned into concern about the economy and job security.

And the militancy? "Back in '72," said Dan Dearing, 27-year-old relief man in the body shop on an assembly line that makes Vegas, "people were saying 'the hell with the company.' Let's change things. Let's walk out and let them steam for a while."

"Now guys are more worried about their jobs. The way the economy is you have to be. Besides, a lot of men laid off then were never called back. I think it scared a lot of people."

Like many Lordstown workers now, Dearing says he can live with his job. There are petty harassments to put up with, but the pay and benefits are good, and that seems the major consideration to most. Assembly line workers make $5.50 an hour, maybe $12,000 a year with a little overtime.

"As far as the boredom and monotony thing, I don't think that will ever change," Dearing said. "I don't have that problem, not on my job. The rest of the people, maybe they just resigned themselves to it."

Lordstown is near the eastern end of the Cleveland-Youngstown industrial axis in northeastern Ohio. Its GM complex spreads over 975 acres next to the Ohio Turnpike. The workers are largely second generation industrial workers — sons and daughters of Mahoning Valley steel workers — or first generation off the farm. There are 550 women and about 1,100 minority employees, mostly black — about the same percentages as in 1972.

The trouble at Lordstown began after a high speed Vega assembly line was installed 1970. It was the assembly line of the future: 100 cars an hour, 40 more than other lines.

It was designed to make work easier. It moved up and down to reduce bending and stretching. Automatic welders and other machines took over some of the more difficult or delicate jobs. But because it was fast, the average worker had — and still has — 35 seconds to perform his task as the line moved inexorably forward.

The workers on the line were young, mod and militant, longhaired and little awed by management, the work ethic or its discipline.

In October, 1971, GM removed the Chevrolet Division and Fisher Body management that had run the plant. The General Motors Assembly Division — the G-MADs to the workers — was sent in. The new management ordered reductions in the work force.

Too much work per man, said the union. Some cars began coming down the line with internal engine parts stacked on top of the motor block. Other cars came through with slashed electrical cables and cracked instrument panels. Sabotage, said management.

In the months before the 1972 strike, there were often as many as 1,800 cars in the repair yard at the Vega plant. Day after day, the line was shut down after one or two hours because the repair yard was full.

When the 1972 strike finally came it was settled in three weeks and few people in the union say they got much out of it.

But the shutdowns for repairs didn't happen this year. Before this year's strike, there were seldom more than 20 cars in the repair yard, said John Grix, GMAD's public relations manager at the plant.

It is an unfounded fear, said Grix, but many workers are concerned that repetition of the 1972 tactics would cause GM to pull Vega production out of Lordstown. GM did open a Vega plant in Canada late in 1972 and soon will be producing Vegas at South Gate, Calif.

There have been other changes at Lordstown, too. According to company records, disciplinary lay offs declined from more than 500 in the month before the 1972 strike to about 200 in the month before this year's walkout.

Fender hangers and motor mount men may complain about arbitrary discipline and unfair foremen, but fewer are now willing to risk going out the door for a day, a week or a month without pay.

And the Lordstown work force has turned 30. The average age of the workers was 29.1 in 1972. It was 31.4 years last January. Again and again, company and union officials and the workers themselves talk about wives, children and mortgage payments.

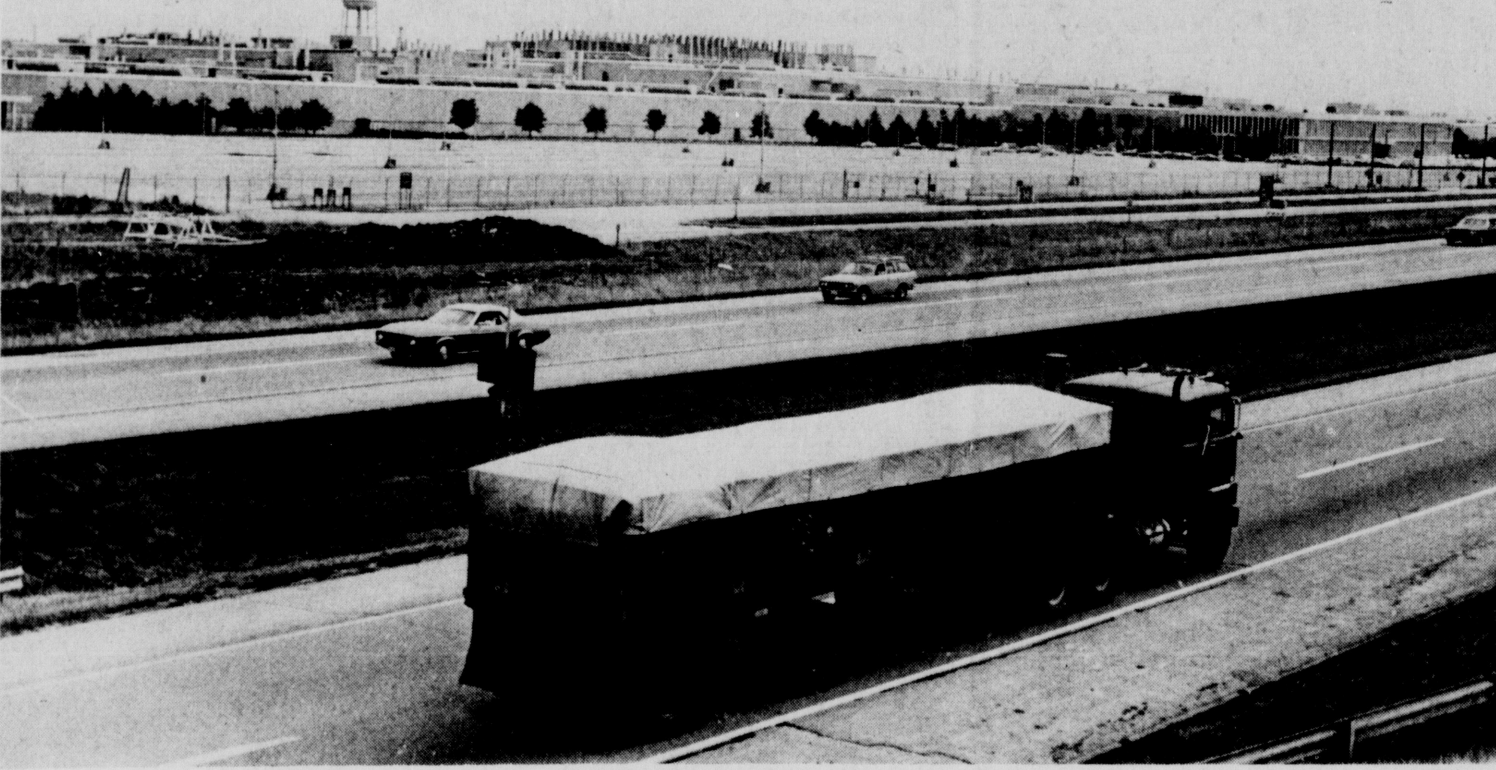

"Right now, a lot of these people are so establishment they are unbelievable," said Grix. "We got a lot of guys out there with long hair and mod clothes. But even that guy, he might be saying, 'I don't buy your lifestyle,' but he's willing to work for us."

Workers' conditions on the line have not improved since 1972, says Ford. "As a matter of fact, they are maybe a little worse." It is not that people don't feel something has to be done about it, he said, but they are going about it in different ways.

The absentee rate has risen from 8 per cent in 1971 to 10.5 per cent in 1973 to 12.7 per cent in June, 1974.

Sometimes 10 per cent of the work force misses Mondays and Fridays.

Many of those who do punch in every day have their own ways of coping. On the picket line or in bars a few miles away, it is easy to find auto workers who tell of going to work stoned on alcohol or marijuana.

Auto plant stalled

Traffic on the turnpike at Lordstown, Ohio, is moving — but beyond it, beyond the chain link fence and parking lots, General Motors' Vega plant stands silent and unmoving. The plant, with the fastest, most automated assembly line in the world, has been struck since July 3, when the 7,800 men of Local 1112 of the United Auto Workers walked off their jobs.

Workers might not be any happier at Lordstown these days, but they are more inclined to file a grievance than organize a protest.

Before the 1972 strike, members of Local 1112 had filed 6,000 grievances over work standards, discipline, health and safety conditions and other matters covered by their contract. There were 16,000 grievances on file when they struck this July.

There were more motorcycles than Vegas in the parking lot when, this August, Local 1112 members came in to pick up their weekly strike benefit checks — $40 maximum for a married worker with two children.

Bob Hunt got $30. He is 24 and single and wore white double knit slacks and dark glasses. He is a relief operator on the Vega line and insists on working exactly according to the contract.

"I've been tossed out of the plant umpteen times just because I stick by the book, 100 per cent by the book," he explained. "I just want people to stick up for what they believe is right."

"Some day, I want to see the union defeat management," said Hunt. "I don't mean stomp them on the ground. All I mean is going in to work and not being a number, a robot, a piece of machinery."

Farm roundup

Report bad news for producers

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rising feed prices are more than offsetting gains for cattle, hogs, dairy and poultry products and are shaping up as the main deterrent to stepped-up production of those basic food items, figures from the Agriculture Department indicate.

The situation can be summed up simply by comparing feed costs with prices farmers get for livestock and poultry products.

The net result is that the USDA's report last Friday, which showed farm prices generally were up 3 per cent during the month ended Aug. 15, includes some bad news for producers.

For example, the report showed farm prices of cattle, hogs and eggs were up significantly from mid-July. But it said prices of corn and soybeans also gained.

Thus, the report said, the hog-corn ratio as of Aug. 15 was 10.7 compared with 11.9 in July and 21 just a year earlier. That figure is the amount of corn in bushels equal to the market value of 100 pounds of live hog.

Thus, at Aug. 15 prices, a hog would buy only about one-half as much corn as it did a year earlier. There were other indicators expressing similar situations.

—The Aug. 15 egg-feed ratio was 5.6 meaning that was the number of pounds of feed a producer could buy from the sale of one dozen eggs. In July it was 6.1 and on Aug. 15 last year the ratio was 8.3.

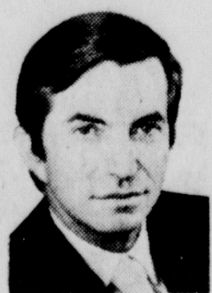

—Broiler producers saw their ratio drop to 2.3 pounds of feed that could be bought from selling one pound of live bird, compared with 2.6 in July and 4 a year earlier.

—The turkey-feed ratio was 2.8, compared with 2.9 in July. A year earlier, on Aug. 15, 1973, one pound of liveweight turkey sold for enough to buy 4.3 pounds of feed.

—Dairy producers saw the milk-feed ratio drop to 1.1 as of Aug. 15. That indicated the pounds of feed which could be bought from selling one pound of whole milk. A month earlier it was 1.29 and a year earlier 1.27. Two years ago, on Aug. 15, 1972, the ratio was 1.72.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Production of American-type cheese declined seasonally in July but totaled 165 million pounds, the most for that month on record, says the Agriculture Department.

The department said July production was down 11 per cent from June but was 8 per cent above July 1973. Production of butter also dropped from June, down 15 per cent, but was 16 per cent above a year earlier.

The 'rice diet' can be helpful

Dear Dr. Lamb — A friend has recently been put on a strange diet by a doctor of good reputation, and it makes little sense to me. I understand it was given for the purpose of fluid in the body and for a kidney condition. I'd like to try it for the fluid condition but hesitate to do anything so drastic. Nothing but cooked rice and orange juice for every meal for four or five days.

Is it worth the try and has it any benefit for the system? Seems very unbalanced to me, and I try to balance my diet to the best of my knowledge as I cannot take drugs too well without side effects.

Dear Reader — There are many "strange diets" used for special medical problems that should never be used by the public without a doctor's recommendation. The diet you speak of is a variation of the "rice diet." It was popularized by Dr. Walter Kempner at Duke University years ago. In its original form it included only limited amounts of rice and fruit.

The rice diet has two big advantages, it is low in salt and low in protein. You might wonder what advantage there would be to having a low protein diet. If you have kidney disease you sometimes have trouble eliminating urea, the ammonia part of amino acids in the excess protein most people eat. It is also low in calories and can be used as a weight reducing diet. Like other such diets it can make you very weak. You need to take vitamins and minerals if you are on such a diet more than a few days.

The rice diet was used very successfully in many patients with high blood pressure in the days when we had few, if any, effective medicines to offer for this problem. With new medicines it is rarely used. Still it does have its place in medical problems associated with retention of salt, kidney problems, and high blood pressure. The chief value of the diet has been demonstrated to be its extremely low sodium content (low salt).

Since neither rice nor fruit contain any major amount of fat and neither contain any cholesterol, it is truly a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet. It is an exhausting diet in many respects. It is certainly not something I could ever advise anyone to take just to manage normal cyclic changes in fluid retention.

Absolutely no one should be on this diet unless the doctor has recommended it for a particular problem. However, if I had a patient who could not be managed properly with medicines and a more general diet, I would give it serious consideration.

You have to limit your calories on this diet to lose weight. Calories do count. I always remember one of my patients I had told to eat nothing but rice and fruit in the hopes of controlling his weight and heart disease problems. He did not lose weight. So I asked him, "Alan, what have you been eating?" He replied, "Just what you told me, doc. Just rice and fruit, rice and fruit."

Being of a suspicious nature, I asked him, "what kind of fruit?" "Bananas, doc."

"How many bananas, Alan?" "Oh, I've just been giving them hell." When the fruit was limited, his weight began to disappear. (NEA)

Warns telephone credit cards may be taken away

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The chairman of the Missouri House Accounts Committee has warned state representatives to bring their long-distance telephone bills in line with the committee's $75 a month policy or face losing their telephone credit cards.

"I'm not raising hell, I just want to tighten up on some of these phone bills," said Rep. Fred DeField, D-Charleston, after meeting with the committee Tuesday.

"When you get up around several hundred dollars, it's kind of ridiculous. If they don't (cut back on expenses), next month we're going to start pulling some of these telephone cards."

According to records of the House administrator, the average monthly long distance telephone bill for all 163 House members ranges between $6,000 and $9,000, and DeField pointed out that most of the House members keep the monthly expense to well below $100.

While less than a dozen representatives have had bills of more than $100 a month this summer, the records that some were very high, led by Reps. Harold Martin, D-St. Louis, and Joseph Fendler, R-St. Louis, who both had monthly bills of more than $400.

Some of those with high bills told the committee that they believe other persons were making the calls and charging them to the House credit cards and DeField said some card numbers may be changed to prevent that problem in the future.

"We don't want somebody using these phone cards who is not authorized to use them," he commented, "and we think that may be happening."

Council replaces old agency

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The effects of state reorganization continued even two months after it was implemented as a new council has been formed to oversee the expenditure of federal grants awarded to Missouri by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

State Public Safety Chief Mike Garrett said Tuesday the new Missouri Council on Criminal Justice, headed by Kansas City attorney Gene Voights, will replace the Missouri Law Enforcement Assistance Council, which was abolished under reorganization.

Garrett also announced that a special task force within the new council will review management of the new agency, which is responsible for developing statewide criminal justice plans and monitoring the expenditure of the anticrime funds.

The new council members are: State Supreme Court Judge James A. Finch, St. Louis Appellate Judge Joseph Simeone, State Prison Chief George Camp, State Probation and Parole Head W. R. Vermillion, Highway Patrol Supt. Sam Smith.

State Sen. William J. Esely, R-Bethany, Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax, Kansas City Police Chief Joseph D. McNamara, Alexander Netchvolodoff of the attorney general's office, Columbia Newspaper Publisher Henry Waters.

Howard F. Baer of St. Louis, John C. Braackman of Union, Clarence Breazeal of Trenton, Richard Dunn of St. James, Don Hancock of Doniphan, Robert Wilson of Crane, Margaret Bush Wilson of St. Louis and John Koffman of Moberly.

Surrenders to begin serving prison sentence

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bobby Lee Williams, 38, a leader in the United Front civil rights group here and in Cairo, Ill., surrendered to a U.S. Marshal Tuesday to begin serving a five-year prison sentence for illegally purchasing a firearm.

Williams was convicted in 1973 of falsely denying he had any prior convictions when he bought a rifle in 1971 in Cape Girardeau, Mo.

About 50 friends and supporters of Williams calling themselves the National Committee to Free Bobby Williams accompanied him to the marshal's office. A spokesman said an active effort would be made to seek a quick parole for the civil rights activist.

Car-motorcycle accident fatal

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Police say Kenneth C. Cox, 19, Springfield, was killed Tuesday evening when his motorcycle was struck by a car that ran a red light.

Police said the car stopped at a red light, then pulled through the intersection when a car next to it turned right on the red light. The first car struck the cycle.

Cox died later in a Springfield hospital of massive head injuries.

Higher prices on pork seen

By TERRY GANEY
Associated Press Writer

VILLA RIDGE, Mo. (AP) — Alfred Spaunhorst sits in the house he was born in 46 years ago and wonders whether his son will be able to continue the operation of the family's 250-acre farm in Villa Ridge, Mo. Of prime concern to Spaunhorst and other Midwest farmers is the price they are being paid for hogs.

"The farmers are really quitting. There's just not going to be any meat around," said Spaunhorst, who operates a National Farmers Organization hog collection point.

The collection point is part of the NFO's project called "Little Porker," which is designed to slaughter, freeze and ship 500,000 feeder pigs to foreign countries in an attempt to reduce the number of hogs available in the United States. Feeder pigs weigh 50 to 60 pounds and take about four or five months to mature.

Spaunhorst said the project means 87 million pounds of dressed pork will not make it to the butcher's shelf.

"All the farmer is asking is a return on the cost of production plus a little profit," Spaunhorst said.

Farmers would like to see the price of hogs back near the 50-cent level it reached last year at this time. Last week, hogs brought only 38 cents a pound at the National Stockyards near East St. Louis, Ill.

Joseph A. McClure of the U.S. Department of Agriculture says the price of hogs will go up beginning next year because farmers are abandoning hog production due to high operating costs and low returns. The result will be higher pork prices at the meat counter early next year.

He discounted any effect the NFO's "Little Porker" project might have.

"We slaughter on the national level 300,000 hogs per day. The 500,000 feeder pigs would make up only a day and a half of an average kill," McClure said.

McClure said, however, that farmers are abandoning hog production as evidenced by the large number of sows being brought to market. He said hog receipts will be down 10 per cent "about eight months from now."

"For the small farmer, hog production is a money-losing proposition," McClure said.

Welfare workers stage a walkout

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Protesting low pay and heavy case-loads, 60 welfare workers walked off their jobs here Tuesday.

The workers were from the Missouri Division of Family Services, which handles food stamp programs, public assistance and other programs for Jackson County. The division has about 640 employees, including 400 caseworkers.

Director J. Joseph Lewis said he sympathized with the workers' concerns, but not their methods.

Lewis said employees received a 5 per cent pay hike July 1, but it did not affect caseworkers who started on the job since then.

Moving firm is sought by council

The Pettis County Extension Council will continue its search for a moving firm, the group decided at its Tuesday meeting. The Extension offices, presently in the Federal Building, 319 South Lamine, will be moved to the Securities Building, 1806 West 11th, by the first of October.

At Tuesday's meeting, the council had two moving bids, but it was decided to continue looking for more. The council will now contact other movers to see if they would be interested in the work. The council hopes to have finished its search within the next two weeks.

Council chairman Dr. James Houchens made the original contacts with the movers. Dr. Houchens was not able to attend the Tuesday night meeting due to another meeting.

The council hired a new youth assistant for Pettis County. The new employee is Mrs. Vivian Woodall, who has worked for the Extension Center in Johnson County, according to Clem Ball, secretary of the council.

Mrs. Woodall's husband is employed in Sedalia and the couple has been living here. She replaces Mary Wood, who resigned.

The Council also appointed Mrs. Ella Virgil, 525 North Osage, to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Mrs. William Gatewood. Mrs. Virgil will serve on the council until March, 1975.

Local road work included in bids

Highway work in Pettis County was included in bids to be opened by the Missouri State Highway Commission Sept. 20, it was announced Wednesday. The work on the total 21 projects planned is expected to cost about $29 million.

The local work involves Highway 65, where the commission plans general excavation, resurfacing of existing pavement, shoulder stabilization and other work from the Sedalia city limits south to 0.7 miles south of Route F.

Another court appearance for pilots ordered

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Two American pilots arrested on drug charges 3½ weeks ago have been ordered held for another court appearance Sept. 9.

Gary Charles Churchill, 28, of St. Louis, Mo., and Ronald Carlisle of Tampa, Fla., were brought into a magistrate's court in Spanish Town Monday, but the government told the court the investigation was not complete yet.

Churchill and Carlisle were arrested when they landed their Piper Aztec plane on an abandoned airstrip on an estate on the north coast after filing a flight plan for a trip from Montego Bay to the Bahamas.

Lighter tackle increases sport

By ERIC SHARP
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Fishermen with fond boyhood memories of catching creek chub with a willow pole and a penny hook have forgotten an important point in these days of high-priced tackle:

Probably half the reason that tow-haired kid had so much fun was his gear was matched to his quarry.

Most fishermen describe themselves as sportsmen, but a guy who hunts three-pound mackerel with heavy trolling tackle would think a good football game would match the Miami Dolphins and St. Mary's Convent.

The purpose of sports fishing is more than catching fish. The idea is to have a good time while you're doing it.

A lot of bass fishermen have gone home empty-handed, complaining that they spent the day taking a lot of useless little panfish off the hook.

What's wrong with catching panfish? They're not much on heavy bait casting tackle, but why not pack a light rod along for days when the bass aren't active but the sunfish are?

Ten years ago, I was stationed at an Air Force base near Kansas City, Mo., and we fished a farm pond that adjoined the base. One evening, I spent two fruitless hours casting for bass, but I hooked a dozen sunfish hardly bigger than the topwater plug they tackled.

People in the news

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House says it's abolishing the position held by the Rev. John McLaughlin, the Jesuit priest who was one of former President Richard M. Nixon's most loyal boosters. But McLaughlin says he knows nothing about it.

Jerald F. terHorst, President Ford's press secretary, told newsmen on Tuesday that he had discovered that McLaughlin was on the press office payroll.

"I have no slot for that position ... The way we have restructured the press office there is no place for Father McLaughlin or anyone else in that spot ... the job is going to be abolished."

But McLaughlin said later: "To this very hour, I've had no discussion with any White House official on the duration of my stay."

He added: "I do not believe President Ford is laying a cold and clammy hand on my back ... and easing me out the front door."

NEW YORK (AP) — High wire artist Phillippe Petit, whose feats have dazzled residents of the New York area for the past month, has been officially cleared of any wrongdoing.

Manhattan Criminal Court Judge Robert Haft quashed on Tuesday charges of disorderly conduct and criminal trespass brought against Petit for his

In a moment of inspiration, I cut a skinny five-foot stick from some bushes, tied on a few feet on monofilament and attached an ultra-light topwater popper. I was still standing there after dark, slapping at mosquitos and catching panfish after panfish.

The next step was to buy a $3 flyrod, $2 of fly reel and a handful of popping bugs. From then on, that pond provided some of the most fun fishing I've ever known. Hooking the little blighters was tricky, and a half-pound fish would bend that flyrod double.

A lot of salt-water fishermen use trolling reels and boat rods for Spanish and king mackerel. Why not try spinning gear? You can troll with a spinning reel, and there are some good sinker rigs that will let you put the bait or lure deep and break away when the fish hits. Otherwise, you can use heavy enough tackle when necessary.

The fisherman who tries to haul bass out of weedy, snag-filled waters with six-pound line better have a good supply of plugs. And he isn't doing the bass any favor by leaving them to wander around with lures dangling from their mouths.

The lure probably would drop away after a few days, but some experts think the fish wouldn't survive that long. The lure can easily get hung up on an obstruction as the fish swims about, and predators are attracted to animals that look different from the norm.

Aug. 7 tightrope walk between the 1,353-foot-high towers of the World Trade Center.

Haft had said he would drop the charges if Petit performed for the city's children. Last week, he walked a 600-foot cable 80 feet above Central Park's Belvedere Lake.

Petit was not in court. On Labor Day, he walked a wire over the Great Falls of the Passaic River in Paterson, N.J.

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Hope, who portrayed former Mayor Jimmy Walker in a movie, has been honored by New York's present mayor.

Mayor Abraham D. Beame presented Hope on Tuesday with a scroll for distinguished service for dedication to the armed forces and as "an international ambassador of good will."

Hope portrayed Walker in the movie "Beau James."

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's chief military aide, Richard Lawson, has been promoted to major general by his boss.

Lawson, a 44-year-old native of Fairfield, Iowa, has been military assistant at the White House for the past year. An Air Force officer, he has operational control of military support for the President, including the military aircraft used by the chief executive.

Former Sedalia journalist sees friend become president

By RON JENNINGS
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Twenty-six years ago, former Sedalian Nina Babcock grew disgruntled with the "rubberstamp congressman representing us" in Michigan's Fifth District. Together with a small group of influential friends, she knocked on the door of a young lawyer, World War II veteran and football hero they felt could best do the job.

On Aug. 8, Miss Babcock "was too emotional to even speak" as she viewed that man, Gerald R. Ford, take the oath of office as America's 38th president.

"Half the time my head was raised in prayer and the other half it was lowered in tears," remarked the Sedalia High School graduate and former newspaperwoman whose father, Judd L. Babcock, served as mayor here for 14 years between 1902 and 1927. "It was practically overwhelming to see him elevated to the Presidency," she said.

However, Miss Babcock indicated, this wasn't exactly the first time she had been overwhelmed by her friend Jerry.

"This February, we had a big homecoming back here for him," she said recently from Cedar Springs, Mich., in a telephone interview. "The banquet was held in the auditorium of Calvin College in Grand Rapids, Jerry's Michigan home. It was televised and close to 4,000 people attended. Most of the guest speakers were tearful and nostalgic, but I was humorous. I guess he liked my speech because he booted right over the ropes around his table, came up and kissed me!"

As editor-in-chief of the Cedar Springs Clipper for 25 years (she still free lances), Miss Babcock was in the vanguard of those publicly supporting Ford through the years. "He never, ever forgot us back here in Grand Rapids and Cedar Springs," she said.

Red Flannel Friends

At a testimonial dinner held in his behalf last February in Grand Rapids, Mich., former Sedalian Miss Nina Babcock and then-Vice President Gerald Ford took the opportunity to display a pair of red flannel underwear — one of their many bonds of friendship over the past 26 years.

Military pressing for arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senior Egyptian military officers are pressing their government to patch up differences with the Soviet Union so they can obtain Russian arms again, U.S. intelligence sources report.

These sources said Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy has been invited to Moscow in mid-October and a top Egyptian general probably will accompany him.

The Russians have withheld deliveries of new equipment and critically important spare parts from Egypt since mid-April, according to U.S. intelligence.

The Soviet cut-off came as U.S.-Egyptian relations were warming after nearly two decades of hostility.

Egyptian military officers are said by U.S. intelligence sources to have soured on Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's new friendship toward the United States, which so far has brought neither a reduction in U.S. arms support for Israel nor any American weaponry for Egypt.

Family barricades itself in consulate

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "We came out because the American police said they'd help us," said Charlotte Berenguer. "We decided there was no use in staying forever," said her daughter, Jackie.

Joseph Berenguer, his wife, son and three daughters occupied the French consulate here for seven hours on Tuesday. They threatened to set it on fire before emerging after listening to the pleas of a longtime friend and sheriff's officers.

The French nationals said they were aggravated over repeated attempts to settle a 12-year-old claim for $20,000 for land confiscated when France granted independence to Algeria in 1962.

"It's a matter of honor," daughter Jeannie, 16, said at one point.

The Berenguers, who run a French delicatessen in Sata Barbara, entered the office of Consul General Jean Francois Roux on Tuesday afternoon, ejected its lone occupant, a secretary, and nailed the door shut.

They said they planned to fast for justice and announced, "We have enough gasoline to burn down the building and we're willing to burn with it unless we get justice."

"We've been coming to the consulate for seven years and the government refuses to pay us for the property they took from us," Jeannie said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press.

"My family owned a factory and farm in French Africa (now Algeria), but when the French-African war started there, they told us to go to France and they would help us start over, but they haven't helped us at all."

The Berenguers stayed inside for seven hours while police and sheriff's officers kept a vigil and friends told them to come out.

Finally, Peter Noel Medina, 46, a friend who said he had similar claims, told them they had won the public's attention and could do no more good by extending their stay. They voted to come out.

Sheriff's deputies removed three one-gallon glass jugs of clear liquid from the offices after the Berenguers left. Each was labeled in red: "Danger — Gasoline." But a fire department spokesman said they contained water.

Eagleton still says plan dead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., again states that a plan for the government to buy 3,700 acres in the Sac River valley below Stockton Dam is dead.

Eagleton originally made the statement at a community meeting in Stockton after a boat trip down the Sac on Aug. 26 to inspect damage to land in the area reported by owners.

A short time later, the Army's district engineer in Kansas City advised the land owners below the dam that he and his staff are working on a compromise alternative, but if it is not feasible he may return to the original buy-out proposal.

Eagleton said Tuesday, "Whether the engineers are prepared to concede it or not, the fact is that no recommendation which entirely shifts the burden for their (Army Corps of Engineers) mistake to the property owners involved is going to be approved by the Congress."

"He felt, more so than many congressmen I believe, in the importance of regularly meeting with his homefolks. He never let us down."

Not even, she noted, on the day he was nominated as vice president last October.

"Every fall, for the past 37 years, we've had our annual Red Flannel Festival and parade here in Cedar Springs and Jerry never missed one since he was in Congress," she said. "But last year, as it turned out, he was nominated the night before the parade was going to be held and we thought sure he wouldn't be able to leave Washington."

"However, at 7 a.m. the following day, a call came from the Secret Service saying he would be here around noon. Radio and TV's were blaring the news all over this part of the country and people poured into Cedar Springs like ants."

But, Miss Babcock quickly added, her biggest surprise was yet to come.

"He'd always come to my house during the festival, but we thought he'd surely have to fly right in and right out again under the circumstances," she said. "But, just as the parade was starting, a Secret Service agent told me that Jerry wanted to see me right away. I told the man I couldn't leave because the parade was just beginning and I was expected to be in it. He told me that I would get back into the parade, so I left with him. He took me to Jerry, who said he would meet me at my house after the parade."

"When I got there, he put his arms around me and told everybody 'she is one of the reasons I am where I am today. I'll never in my life forget that moment.'"

Gerald Ford might never have been elected in 1948, Miss Babcock joked, "if I hadn't had my politicking experience in Sedalia to fall back on." One of her first campaign memories, she indicated, was circling the neighborhood around 907 West Seventh, where her father had constructed the family home which still stands.

"He was a Republican and he kept winning in a Democratic town," she laughed. "Even after I left home, I always kept in very close touch with my father's election efforts. I used to get a telegram after every election from Jess Hampton. He was such a strong Democrat that he never wore a blue suit, because that was the color of the Union Army. But, he always sent that telegram to let me know how my father fared."

Between leaving Sedalia, where she worked on the Sedalia Independent and Sedalia Republican newspapers, and arriving in Cedar Springs, Miss Babcock held many journalistic positions. In New York, she worked for former Sedalian Bernarr MacFadden's True Detective Mysteries and later for Oswald Garrison Villard's magazine, The Nation.

"Journalism may have been my profession, but politics? Well, you might say that's been my life," Miss Babcock said.

Will she ever visit her favorite congressman in his new surroundings? Although she would no doubt get the red-carpet treatment, Miss Babcock indicated such a trip isn't in her immediate plans.

"Jerry's got enough to think about now, the way it is," she said. "I probably won't be bothering him anytime soon."

James Harmon, son of Mrs. Dorothy Harmon, 700 West Third, recently completed recruit training at the U. S. Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill., and is home on 14 days leave. He will next report to the USS Vancouver at San Diego, Calif. He is a 1974 graduate of Smith-Cotton High School.

Townhouses shipped to Saudi Arabia

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — An American freighter loaded with 120 prefabricated townhouses and enough plastic, chrome and glass furnishings to fill them is on its way to Taif, Saudi Arabia.

King Faisal ordered the living quarters and their furnishings for some of his 3,000-member family. Others will go for nurses quarters at the King Faisal Specialist Hospital.

Next month, in the shadow of the king's palace, crews of American workmen will assemble the rows of Kingsberry homes made by the Boise Cascade Corp., bringing middle-class America to the Arabian desert.

The townhouses will have wall-to-wall shag carpets, central air conditioning and built-in intercoms and AM-FM radio systems.

The Atlanta office of Boise Cascade and the Atlanta interior decorating firm of Roderick and Co. helped put together the unconventional business deal with Saudi Arabia.

Ben Roderick, president of the decorating company, says he soon found that the Arabs have a penchant for America's pop furniture — plastic stackables, blow-up chairs and knock-down tables.

Roderick said he had a difficult time trying to find extra-long wardrobe closets to accommodate the long robes which are an essential part of the Arab wardrobe.

Controversy results in resignations

CALLAO, Mo. (AP) — The little town of Callao has lost all of its city officials in a heated dispute over mandatory garbage pickup.

The mayor, city clerk and all four city councilmen of this northeast Missouri community of about 375 people resigned at a City Council meeting Tuesday night.

The controversy centered on a state law which went into effect July 1 requiring cities to provide garbage pickup service. Callao and other towns in Macon County initiated a joint program of trash removal, which cost residents $2.45 a month.

But the residents of Callao, a rural town nine miles west of Macon, apparently wanted nothing to do with such a plan, which would prevent them from disposing of their own garbage at the city dump at no cost.

"Citizens have told us we don't have to abide by the law, and that gets pretty old after awhile," said the resigned city clerk, Joanne Grugin.

"What we hear from the people is that they should have had a vote. We just had to abide by state rules, but the people just didn't want to do it," Mrs. Grugin said.

Pasta is black market item in its homeland

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — Government indecision and hoarding by suppliers or housewives has turned pasta into a black market item in its homeland.

Stores are running out of spaghetti, macaroni and other varieties of the national staple. "Naples is hungry — a Neapolitan tragedy," said the newspaper Il Mattino.

With inflation soaring, the Italian government has kept pasta on its list of special items whose prices are controlled. Because producers claimed they were not making a reasonable profit and were threatened with bankruptcy, the local government authorized a 45 percent price hike, from 52 to 75 cents a pound.

Irate mothers and labor leaders protested, and the government ordered a rollback. But there was much expectation that the lower prices would not hold, and pasta disappeared from the stores and markets. Retailers were accused of hoarding and housewives of stocking up.

"Pasta was the only cheap thing there was," said Maria de Biase, a widow. "Now they want to cut that to pieces, too."

Carmela di Criscita says her husband, a construction worker, earns $5 a day and it all goes to buy pasta and bread for their 13 children.

The 2.5 million Neapolitans eat an average of 22 pounds of pasta a month, compared to 6.6 pounds in the industrial northern city of Turin. The Neapolitans say the local poverty of the city is one reason why they depend so heavily on pasta.

Coin show is set for this weekend here

The 16th annual Central Missouri Coin Club show will be held this weekend at Convention Hall in Liberty Park.

Persons will be able to buy, sell or trade coins at the show, which will be held from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

A total of 25 coin dealers from 10 states will attend the event. The free program will be highlighted by coin displays, the giving away of Eisenhower silver dollars and a drawing at 3 p.m. Sunday for a $10 gold piece.

Every year insects and disease nullify about a fifth of the United States' timber growth and fire sweeps some three million acres, National Geographic says.

Bill on college aid before veto session

The Missouri General Assembly is back in session to consider 26 bills vetoed by Gov. Christopher Bond during the last regular session.

We can understand the governor's reasoning in many of his veto actions, done primarily in the interest of holding down spending. Otherwise, a tax increase will be necessary in the near future, Bond has pointed out.

Yet, any basic sense of fairness should give the General Assembly good cause to override the governor's veto of the aid to junior colleges bill. An override will require a two-thirds vote in both houses, and the junior college bill is one of two that is given a pretty good chance.

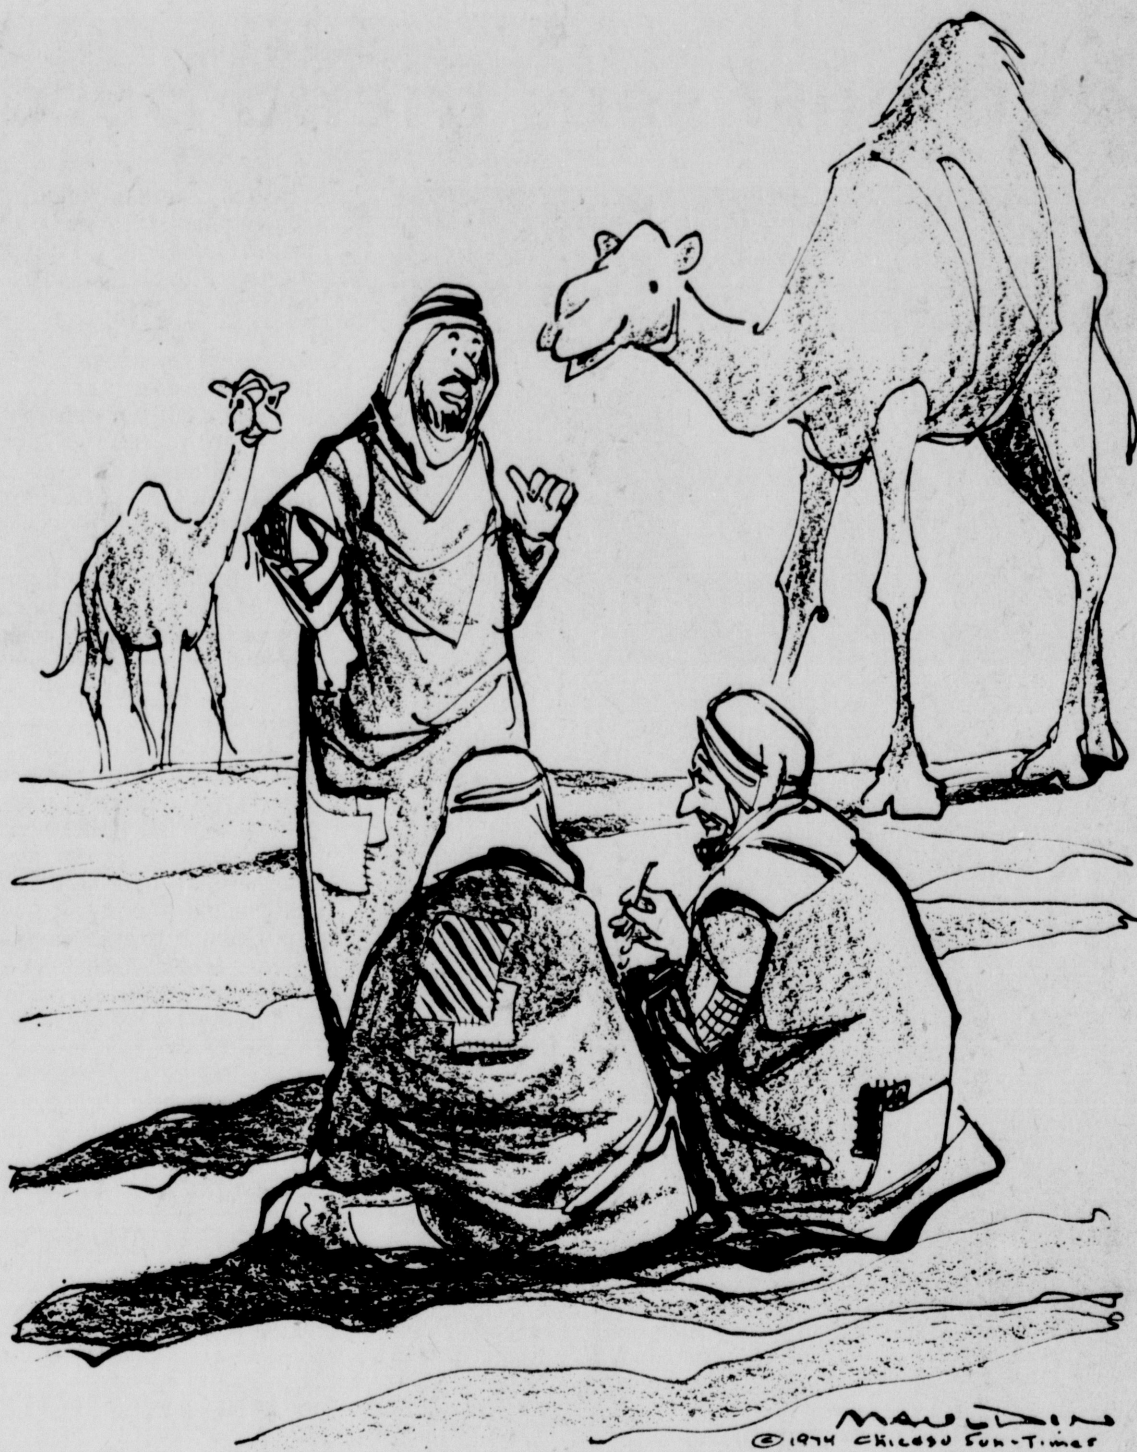

Presently, aid to junior colleges is based on the number of full time equivalent students in a given institution, and is set at $400 per student. The bill would change the basis for figuring aid to put it on a credit hour scale, moving it up from the current $16.67 per credit hour to $21.

The $400 figure has been a lid placed on junior college aid for the past four years. The bill before the veto session would enable Missouri's Coordinating Council for Higher Education to determine the needs of the state's junior colleges without being bound by the ceiling.

Cost of the bill would be about $3.9 million the first year, and another $8 million the second year. For State Fair Community College it would boost aid-per-student from $400 to about $578, which would mean roughly $125,000 more a year in financial assistance.

Missouri's public junior colleges have not been given a fair shake over the years when it comes to state aid. They are the fastest-growing institutions of higher learning in terms of enrollment — accounting for about a third of all students in the state — yet they get only 10 per cent of aid-to-education dollars.

A vote to override would be a step toward correcting this inequity.

WASHINGTON — In earnest talks with his friends in and outside government, President Ford is beginning to shape the Cabinet he hopes will carry him through until January 1977, and beyond.

White House insiders tell us Ford is now concentrating on replacements for Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Caspar Weinberger and, further along, Defense Secretary James Schlesinger.

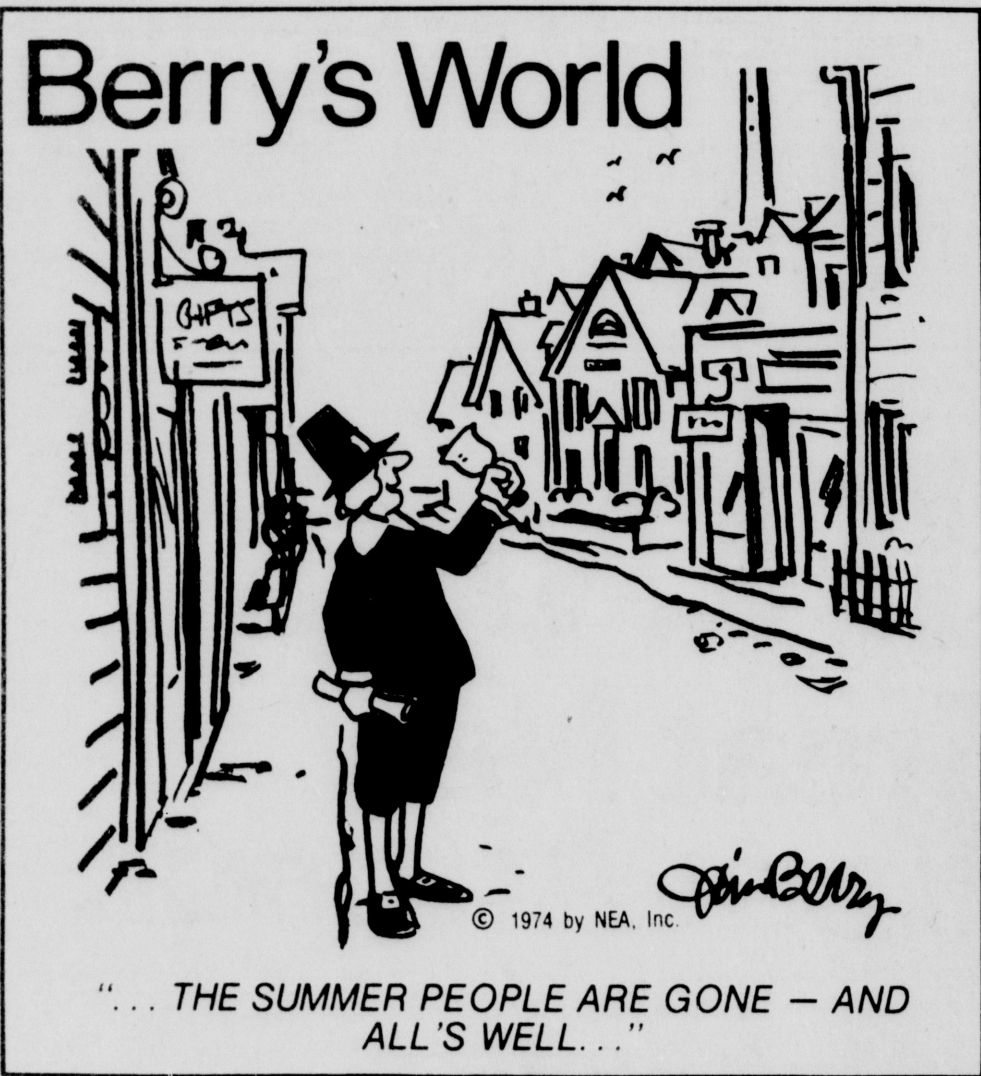

Others almost certain to be dislodged in the near future are Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, Housing and Urban Affairs Secretary James Lynn, and White House budget chief Roy Ash.

To head HEW and Defense, Ford is mulling over the names of Rep. Albert Quie, R-Minn., and Don Rumsfeld, the able ex-head of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Quie is a hard-headed conservative, who as ranking Republican on the House Education and Labor committee, is consulted by HEW every time the sprawling agency takes on a new program.

But he may not want to give up his safe district for the HEW job which, in the past, has been about as secure as being spouse to Henry the Eighth. And Quie, while respected in Congress, lacks the warmth that many feel is needed for the job, a failing felt acutely at HEW under Weinberger.

Schlesinger, on the other hand, has endeared himself to many of his associates, but has not had a good rapport with Congress. Rumsfeld, it is felt, would close this gap. He is still remembered fondly for the courageous yet tactful lobbying he did to keep the Office of Economic Opportunity alive.

Clean Gene returns to the wars

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

CHICAGO — "I have never known a poet," Cicero once remarked, "who did not set a very high value on himself." The observation applies to poet Eugene McCarthy, and in his case the high opinion is widely shared.

Kilpatrick

McCarthy flew out to Chicago the other day to meet with a number of old friends and political allies. He announced himself a "deadly serious candidate" for the presidency in 1976 as standard-bearer for a new Committee for a Constitutional Presidency. This is straight McCarthy: He expects to be a serious candidate, but does not seriously expect to be elected. His purpose is to teach, not to win.

A conflict in schedules kept me from making the McCarthy press conference, but his mere presence in Chicago sent memory rolling back. It was just six years ago that his bid for the Democratic nomination crested and collapsed in the riots of the 1968 convention. McCarthy ordinarily is among the most unflappable of men, but when dozens of his young followers were roughed up by the Chicago cops, he was the angriest man in an angry city. I remember him raging through the littered corridors of the Conrad Hilton Hotel, comforting and embracing his beloved "kids," helping them to escape the shattered convention. It seems a long time ago.

McCarthy's political viability suffers from the "former" syndrome. He is a former member of the House, where he served five terms; he is a former senator from Minnesota; he is a former candidate for the Democratic nomination; he is even a former first baseman in the old Sioux League. He is still a teacher and a poet; and at 58, he is still a very attractive fellow.

There ought to be room in our presidential process for teachers and poets. Off and on through the years, McCarthy has taught economics and political science; he is a teacher now at the New School of Social Research in New York. During the 1968 campaign, his frequent traveling companion was poet Robert Lowell. Once during the Indiana primary race of that year, McCarthy seemed even more aloof than usual from the madding crowd. Instead of politicking, he was back in his hotel room finishing three poems of his own.

Given a national rostrum on which to stand, McCarthy would like to lecture his countrymen principally upon the office of the presidency. In this field he was a prophet before his time. Long before Arthur Schlesinger discovered the "imperial presidency," and long before Richard Nixon sank in the swamps of Watergate, McCarthy was warning against the excesses of presidential power. McCarthy is a practicing liberal, and for many years his position was not a popular liberal position. It happened merely to be sound.

McCarthy would also like to talk about the two-party system, whither it is drifting, what it is failing to accomplish. His complaint, as I understand it, is that the machinery fails to offer the people a sufficiently wide choice, and often offers the people no realistic choice at all. If pending proposals for the public financing of federal elections are adopted, the country is likely to be locked permanently into the present two parties. "This is obviously wrong," says McCarthy, "because neither party represents what many Americans want."

Do many Americans want a practicing poet as president? Probably not. Given a choice, they might better accept a former first baseman. In his memoir of the 1968 campaign, McCarthy recalled a comment by Clemenceau, in speaking of the Dreyfus case, "that a country cannot be ruled by its philosophers, artists, or scholars." All the same, Clemenceau added, "it is perilous for it to turn on them, to reject their judgment, to ignore their warnings."

McCarthy's judgments and warnings as to Vietnam went unheeded six years ago. This was the key issue of his New Politics and he has lost that issue now. McCarthy was not even an also-ran in the 1972 campaign, and it would take a powerful suspension of disbelief to suppose that he could be a significant factor in 1976. But the gentleman is far more than a liberal Harold Stassen. As a "serious candidate," he will have some serious things to say, and conservatives and liberals alike will profit from listening seriously to him.

and put it into the "Federation," which then used the funds to favor pro-Nixon contractors and to win over elderly fence-sitters.

Arnett cut off all OEO funds for the "Federation" early this year and believes his decision may have been a factor in his firing by Nixon. Now, we have learned that President Ford is considering Arnett for a high White House domestic advisory job.

Brody did not return our calls.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: When the second Watergate grand jury was sworn in, then Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox entered, shook the hands of all present, and said solemnly, "I hope you'll be able to do the right thing." One of those "jurors" was actually a witness, Water conspirator E. Howard Hunt, who got the same hand shake and advice. Hunt confided to a friend that he felt it best to bite his lip and keep quiet... President Ford's budget-trimming is being taken to heart by some in the bureaucracy. A $40,000 five-state regional conference of Department of Labor employees scheduled for El Paso, Tex., has been canceled. As the assistant regional director in Dallas put it, "It would have been damn arrogant of us to proceed with the economy in the mess it's in." ... One of the Consumer Protection Act's most outspoken sponsors has been Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., who was therefore astonished when he got an errant mailgram from the Chamber of Commerce thanking him for his "support" of a filibuster that would kill the bill. Percy and others have talked Majority leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, into an almost unprecedented fourth cloture vote on the filibuster in mid-September ... An unpublished General Accounting Office report says no one knows whether public or private utilities are gouged by the electrical equipment makers. None of these buyers can gain access to manufacturers' records, and not one of 41 state utility commissions queried had ever questioned the cost of the expensive power equipment, the GAO found.

A friend of the seatbelt

I have just read the comments on the dislike of seatbelts. I, too, dislike the "beep beep" when I drive my car in the garage or when my passengers don't belt up.

However, I would like to point out a few facts as I have been told or read. A Highway Patrolman tells me that the seatbelt is the greatest safety item on an automobile. I also read that auto deaths are near the top, around 54,000 per year, that seatbelts and reduced highway speed of 55 miles could reduce deaths by a third or better.

It is hard for me to understand how an intelligent society could be against this safety item. Would a thousand or five thousand lives be worth the effort?

New line for Cuba in works

WASHINGTON — The State Department has quietly torpedoed plans by two senators to make what might have been a highly significant visit to Cuba.

Officials at State told Sens. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., and Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., that the administration did not want to validate their passports for travel to Cuba.

Rowan

Javits and Pell were supposed to fly directly from Florida to Havana on Friday in a private plane. Meetings had been arranged with Premier Fidel Castro and other top-level Cuban officials — perhaps as a major follow-up to the recent statement by Fidel's brother, Raul, that the time has come to normalize relations with the United States.

One State Department source told me that nervousness about the Pell-Javits visit is the surest sign yet that important changes are in the works regarding U.S. relations with Cuba.

Pell says that he is the last member of Congress to visit Cuba (in December 1960) and that he has maintained a deep interest in U.S. relations with that country. Pell more than any other congressman has pressured for an end to the U.S. policy of promoting economic boycott and diplomatic isolation of Cuba.

"It is ineffective and it is wrong and the time is long overdue that we changed it," Pell says.

There is no evidence that State blocked the Pell-Javits trip with the knowledge and concurrence of President Ford. Yet, State's action gives added significance to Mr. Ford's press conference assertion that "if Cuba changes its policy toward us and toward its Latin neighbors, we, of course, would exercise the option depending on what the changes were to change our policy."

Mr. Ford added that the U.S. would act in concert with other members of the OAS.

Here was a case where the new President did not speak with total candor, and that in itself is evidence that delicate diplomatic moves are afoot.

The President is surely aware that the Cubans long ago changed their policies toward OAS nations. The economic blockade against Cuba and the breaking of diplomatic relations were voted a decade ago because of Cuba's fomenting of guerrilla and terrorist attacks against her neighbors, principally Venezuela. I reported from Venezuela two years ago that the attacks had stopped and Venezuelan officials were eager to normalize relations with Cuba.

Mr. Ford, in his press conference, might have led some Americans to believe that sanctions against Cuba were an OAS idea that the U.S. just sort of went along with.

The truth is that we pushed the sanctions mightily, and for many months now we have insisted on keeping Cuba an outcast even though at least two-thirds of the countries of Latin America have wanted to end the blockade and restore relations.

President Ford's lapse from total candor may arise from his desire not to trample too quickly on the sensibilities of Richard M. Nixon, who "had a thing" about Cuba. The former President made history by trying to improve relations with Communist Russia and Communist China, but he clung to a hard line regarding Cuba, former home of his best buddy, Bebe Rebozo.

I rather doubt that the Pell-Javits visit would have harmed a thing. It may well have speeded up some policy changes that are long overdue. But if State and the White House really believe that their staying home will improve the chances of hemispheric detente, then it's just as well that Javits and Pell gave the diplomats a clear hand.

French 'pressure' decision

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — International pressure for tighter controls on foreign exchange dealings by major banks will likely increase following the disclosure by Lloyds Bank of London that it lost as much as $78.2 million in currency transactions in Switzerland, financial commentators said today.

Lloyds, one of Britain's big four clearing banks, blamed the loss on the manager of its branch in Lugano, Switzerland, and his subordinate in charge of foreign currency dealings.

The bank, which has no connection with the famed insurance syndicate of the same name plus an apostrophe, said the loss did not threaten its solvency. It said tax offsets and insurance could reduce the loss to $44.4 million, only a fourth of the amount of the foreign currency debt that forced the collapse of the Herstatt Bank in West Germany in June and less than the $52 million loss in foreign currency dealings that endangered the Franklin National Bank of New York.

The Swiss Federal Banking Commission said it was investigating to determine whether criminality was involved. But foreign exchange dealers said mammoth speculative profits and losses have become common in the international money markets, partly because the markets have been allowed to operate with a minimum of government control for the past 18 months due to the abandonment of the fixed rates of exchange supported by government buying and the free floating of currencies within comparatively wide limits.

"Much of the time, the international foreign exchanges operate like a vast gambling casino with none of the central bank authorities able to impose the proper control over what is going on," one business commentator said.

However, American, West German and Swiss banking authorities have recently been calling for more detailed accounting of foreign exchange dealings by banks operating in their countries.

The Western central bankers hold one of their regular meetings in Zurich this weekend, and they are expected to discuss controls. Some central bankers have argued that a return to a system of fixed exchange rates is the only answer to dangerous speculation by banks.

Curtis reissues his challenge to Eagleton

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — The Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate from Missouri, Tom Curtis, has reissued his challenge to debate Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo.

Curtis made the challenge Tuesday night at a meeting of his supporters and staff workers here.

He also attacked Eagleton's record in the Senate as being that of a big spender. He said inflation will be the number one issue before the voters in November.

Curtis said as far as the debates go, he would be open to any forum, at any place, and accused Eagleton of using the powers of incumbency as a weapon and an excuse against agreeing to debate.

Americans blaze past USSR

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The United States College All-Star team, using superior speed and quickness, blazed by the USSR national basketball team 104-77 in the Los Angeles Sports Arena Tuesday night.

Ron Lee, a 6-foot-4 guard from Oregon, led the U.S. with 18 points in the opener of a six-game series with the Russians. David Thompson, a consensus All-American from North Carolina State, threw in 15 points before fouling out with more than 13 minutes left.

The game was played under international rules, which usually makes for considerable fouling. A total of 73 infractions were whistled by the officials. Four Americans and one Russian fouled out.

The Americans raced to a 16-4 lead early in the game and had three leads of 17 points before settling for a 52-43 halftime edge. The Russians cut the lead to seven at the start of the second half, but the Americans ran away from their slower opponents, opening their largest lead at the final whistle.

The Russians were led by Alexander Salnikov with 21 points. He was backed up by Ivan Yedeshko with 14 and Uri Pavlov and Alexander Belov with 12 each.

A disappointing crowd of 2,064 showed up to see the battle. The series moves to Seattle, Wash., Wednesday and then on to Spokane, Wash., for two games at the World's Fair.

Bunt beater

Chicago White Sox Tony Muser had the speed to beat out this bunt in the fifth inning of Tuesday night's game against the Royals in Kansas City. Royals' first baseman Tony Solaita waits for the throw that came too late. The White Sox won the game, 2-1, dropping the Royals in nine and one-half games off the pace of Oakland in the American League's Western Division.

Royals skid continues

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Royals dropped their eighth game in nine starts Tuesday, this time a 2-1 decision to the Chicago White Sox and rookie pitcher Jack Kueck.

Kueck, 1-0, struck out six and walked two before leaving in the midst of a Kansas City rally in the eighth. Terry Forster then gave up a run-scoring single to Cookie Rojas before squelching the uprising.

Kueck, a 21-year-old right-hander from Miami, Ohio, University, was the White Sox number two choice in last June's free agent draft. He gave up only three hits before the Royals' eighth inning burst.

Kueck said following the game he was "Happy, real happy."

He said his next goal was to go the distance in a ball game.

"I got tired. I haven't gone nine innings since I was down in the Midwest League with Appleton."

Kueck said he was supposed to pitch for Iowa in the American Association Tuesday but got the call to come to the White Sox on Monday before.

"This is really something, playing for this club. This is a good team, one that makes all the plays. I'll have to admit it is a lot different up here."

White Sox Manager Chuck Tanner said it was a fine game for Kueck.

"I hope he continues the improvement. When you got a kid with an arm like his you have got something going for you. He's got a hell of an arm."

The loss dropped Kansas City to third place in the American League Western Division, 9½ games behind Oakland. They were 3½ back at the start of the fatal home stand last week.

Kueck was chased after yielding a double to Frank White and a single to Vada Pinson. Rojas then drove home the Royals' only score of the night.

Chicago jumped on Bruce Dal Canton, 8-8, for two runs in the first on Pat Kelly's leadoff single. Terry Muser's RBI double and Ken Henderson's single to center.

Dal Canton was at a loss to explain the Royals' tailspin.

"I can't believe it and I can't understand it, how we can play this bad. How did we get like this? What happened? I just can't believe we could play like this after the road trip, coming home and all."

The two clubs wind up their three-game series tonight, with Paul Splittorff, 13-14, trying to salvage one for the Royals. Jime Kaat, 14-13, is scheduled for Chicago.

In the other American League games, the Cleveland Indians beat the Detroit Tigers 5-1 in the first game of a doubleheader before losing the second 5-4 in 11 innings; the Texas Rangers stopped the Minnesota Twins 6-3 and the Oakland A's defeated the California Angels 7-0.

Indians 5-4, Tigers 1-5

Gaylord Perry didn't allow a hit for five innings and finished with a six-hitter to pace Cleveland's first-game victory over Detroit.

Tom Verzyer's run-scoring single with two out in the 11th inning lifted the Tigers over the Indians in the second game.

With one out in the 11th inning of the nightcap, Ben Ogilvie slammed a double to left. After Reggie Sanders was intentionally walked, the runners moved to second and third on an infield grounder before Verzyer stroked his game-winning single to left.

A's 7, Angels 0

Ken Holtzman pitched a five-hitter for his 17th victory of the season to lead Oakland over California. The A's took advantage of Nolan Ryan's wildness. The California ace walked eight batters before leaving the game in the fifth inning.

Injury-free Tigers point to Friday

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

The injury bug hasn't found the Smith-Cotton Tigers football camp yet, which is one of the most encouraging facts as S-C heads toward its season opener Friday night in Blue Springs.

"We've really been fortunate," said Greg Cook, the Tigers' head coach before Smith-Cotton hit the practice field Tuesday.

Although injuries haven't been a factor, senior Jim Vansell, who was an all-Central Missouri Conference choice in the defensive backfield as a junior last year, is still sidelined by a knee injury he sustained during baseball season last spring.

Vansell was also a first-string running back most of last season.

One of the areas Cook and his staff have spent more time on during the practice season is on defense.

"We've done more coaching on defense this year," Cook admits, "due mainly to the lack of overall experience and depth."

Offensively, where veteran quarterback Rick McRoy, halfbacks Ray Newbill and Bob Trautman and fullback Bill Deuel are expected to make up the starting backfield Friday night, Cook said his squad's execution has been "better than it was last year at this time."

Cook, who switched from the Wishbone to the Power-I early last season, has gone back to the Wishbone to favor his squad's speed.

Cook and the Tigers will be facing a team that has 28 lettermen back in Friday's road opener.

"It'll be a tough test for us," he commented. "We can't make mistakes... they return a lot of experience."

Friday's scrimmage pleased the Tigers' staff.

Cook commented, "Overall we were happy with it... there were a few mistakes both on offense and defense, but overall it was good... probably better than we expected."

And with that, the Tigers headed for the practice field to gear up for Friday's 1974 opener.

Cards sweep doubleheader

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The Montreal Expos stopped Lou Brock in the opener of their two-night doubleheader Tuesday. Brock was retired in each of his four trips to the plate, although the Cards posted a 5-1 victory.

But the Expos ran out of luck in the second game, won by St. Louis 6-4, and Brock swiped his 99th base of the season. That theft, in his 136th game, left Brock just five short of Maury Wills' record of 104 stolen bases set in 1962.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh beat Philadelphia 8-2, Cincinnati defeated Houston 7-5, San Francisco outscored Los Angeles 9-5, Atlanta topped San Diego 7-2 and New York swept a pair from Chicago 2-0 and 11-4.

The sweep moved the Cards to within two games of the front-running Pirates in the NL East.

Reggie Smith slammed two home runs and Joe Torre belted one to power the Cardinals in the opener, while a pair of two-run doubles by Ken Reitz keyed the attack in the second game.

Pirates 8, Phils 2

Jim Rooker, 11-10, pitched a six-hitter for the Pirates and also contributed with the bat. His double started Pittsburgh on its way to a seven-run outburst in the fifth inning, and his two-run single capped that rally.

Richie Zisk's bases-loaded triple was the big hit in the middle of the Pirates' seven-run explosion.

Giants 9, Dodgers 5

John Montefusco, promoted to the Giants on Monday from their Phoenix farm club, took over with none out in the first inning and the Giants trailing 4-2 and checked the Dodgers on just one run the rest of the way for the victory.

Reds 7, Astros 5

The Reds scored a pair of runs in the ninth to beat Houston. Pinch-hitter Terry Crowley led off with a walk and moved to third on an errant pickoff throw. Crowley held third when Pete Rose beat out a high hopper to shortstop for a single, but came home on Joe Morgan's single.

Braves 7, Padres 2

Mike Lum drove in the tie-breaking run and then scored what proved to be the winning run in the sixth inning for the Braves, who added four unearned tallies in the eighth.

Lum's line drive to right scored Dusty Baker, who had walked and stolen second. Lum scored when Craig Robinson bounced a single through the middle.

Two repeat champs at drag nationals

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Bob Glidden, who was runner-up in his first pro stock drag race two years ago and has since won two national championships, says he and his crew "just want to win again."

Don "The Snake" Prudhomme, a three-time national champion in top fuel dragsters and twice-winner in funny cars, says "I always want to win."

The two drivers were the only repeat champions Tuesday in the finals of the 20th annual National Hot Rod Association's U.S. Nationals at Indianapolis Raceway Park.

Glidden, a hometown favorite from nearby Greenwood, piloted a 1973 Pinto to victory in the pro stock division with a time of 9.01 seconds and a speed of 151.26 miles per hour. Runnerup was Don Nicholson, Orange, Calif., driving a 1973 Mustang.

Prudhomme, defending funny car champion from Granada Hills, Calif., drove a 1974 Barracuda to victory over 19-year-old Billy Meyer of Waco, Tex., in a 1974 Mustang. Prudhomme's time was 6.33 seconds for a speed of 223.32 m.p.h.

Glidden and Prudhomme shared the spotlight with unheralded Marvin Graham of Oklahoma City, Okla., who won his first national championship by taking the top fuel elimination.

Graham won about $21,000 of the total $315,000 purse by beating another surprise finalist, R. Gaines Markley of Federal Way, Wash. The winning time was 6.17 seconds for a top speed of 232.55 m.p.h.

Other winners were Dale Armstrong, Torrance, Calif., in the pro competition division; Bob Riffle, New Albany, Ohio, competition; Tim McDonald, Canton, Ohio, modified; Dwight Cox, Stuttgart, Ark., super stock; Al Vanis, Elizabeth, N.J., stock; and Joe Smith, West Covina, Calif., bike.

Two national records were set in Tuesday's finals, a 7.01 clocking for 196.93 m.p.h. by Armstrong in a 1923 Model T with a Chevy engine, and a 9.30 time for 146.81 m.p.h. by Riffle in a 1975 Ford.

Underdog pressure big push for Vijay Amritraj

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Vijay Amritraj, the affable Indian with a lethal racket, says he's at his best when he's considered the underdog.

"I always play better against a guy who is expected to beat me," he said after his 6-3, 6-3, 6-4 triumph Tuesday over Marty Riessen, the No. 11 seed.

But Vijay fears his magic carpet might be grounded by Ken Rosewall, his quarter-final opponent in the $271,720 U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

"I fear Rosewall most, and then Connors," said the lanky Amritraj. "Newcombe? He has a big serve and volley but he doesn't move you around so much. With Rosewall and Connors, you're lucky to return their serves."

Vijay recalled that he had never beaten the scrappy little Rosewall, who weighs only slightly less than Amritraj but stands only 5-foot-6 to Amritraj's 6-3.

He lost to him at Wimbledon in the second round 6-2, 5-7, 9-8, 6-1 and at Forest Hills last year in the quarters 6-4, 6-3, 6-3.

"His anticipation is unbelievable. He doesn't move fast. But he is alert and his backhand and forehand are so strong."

Jimmy Connors, the No. 1 seed who beat Rosewall for the Wimbledon crown, sought a quarter-final berth today against Jan Kodeš.

John Newcombe, the defending champion and No. 2 seed, advanced Tuesday, as did Arthur Ashe.

Connors' fiancée, Chris Evert, who shared the winner's circle at Wimbledon with him, faced Lesley Hunt of Australia today in a bid for the semi-finals. But Miss Hunt, seeded eighth, thinks she just might have the combination to beat Chris, the No. 1 seed. After all, she was within two points of upsetting her in the second round of Wimbledon.

"It just takes staying in there," said the 24-year-old Miss Hunt. "Chris is like a brick wall. Every single point comes back. You just have to stay with her all the way through and not get frustrated."

In one of the most evenly matched women's quarter-finals, former Wimbledon champion Evonne Goolagong met Kerry Melville in an all-Australian test. Miss Goolagong is seeded fifth and Miss Melville fourth.

In one of the oldest acts of the modern tennis era, Billie Jean King played her double partner, Rosemary Casals. Their previous meetings are too numerous to mention, but the number of times Rosie has won could be counted on one hand with fingers to spare.

'Skins recall Duane Thomas

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

Duane Thomas, the Washington Redskins' own prodigal son, returned to the fold Tuesday and promised to behave himself.

"He said he was sorry," explained Coach George Allen after reinstating Thomas. "He does not want to play for any other team."

Thomas, a gifted but unpredictable running back, was sent packing a week ago after an altercation with assistant coach Charlie Waller in which he reportedly grabbed Waller by the collar, cursed at him, accused him of racism and threatened to punch him.

Later Thomas apologized and asked to rejoin the team.

"It was my toughest decision ever as a coach," said Allen. "It'll be unpopular with a lot of people. My first consideration was for the team. Duane can help us... he has made so much progress I wanted to give him a second chance."

Thomas started his career with Dallas and was instrumental in the Cowboys' victory over Miami in Super Bowl VI. He then was sent to New England, back to Dallas and on to San Diego, leaving angry, frustrated coaches in his wake.

He came to Washington last year but was used only sparingly, gaining fewer than 100 yards on 32 carries.

With the departure of Charlie Harroway to the World Football League, Thomas had apparently won the starting fullback job in Washington.

Elsewhere in the National Football League, the Los Angeles Rams signed veteran center Bill Curry, president of the NFL Players Association, to a one-year contract. Curry was cut five days ago by the Houston Oilers.

A Rams' spokesman said Curry passed a physical examination before signing the contract. The 32-year-old lineman had suffered a broken leg last season in a game against the Rams.

The Cleveland Browns unloaded their player representative, wide receiver Frank Pitts, sending him to Oakland for an undisclosed draft choice next year. Browns' owner Art Modell said that Pitts' being player representative had nothing to do with the deal, but rumors that he may be heading for the WFL may have.

The New York Jets dealt 11-year veteran John Schmidt, their starting center for the past eight years, to the Green Bay Packers.

No wrestling

There will be no professional wrestling show at Convention Hall Tuesday night, according to an announcement Wednesday.

The next show is scheduled for Sept. 17.

The Dallas Cowboys signed free agent kicker George Hunt to replace Toni Fritsch and Harry Kokolus, both of whom are injured.

Back in camp

Controversial running back Duane Thomas, who was suspended by Washington Redskins' coach George Allen after Thomas threatened an assistant coach last week, works out with the team at their training facility near Washington, D.C., Tuesday, after being reinstated by Allen. ### Montreal can't hold Brock down all night

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "I hit the ball well but out. At least it wasn't one of those nights when I bombed," unflappable Lou Brock noted.

The fleet St. Louis Cardinal, closing in one two of baseball's most coveted records, was sidetracked momentarily by the Montreal Expos in a National League doubleheader Tuesday night.

But, after a home run spree by his teammates won the first contest 5-1, Brock was at his reckless best again with a stolen base and a near miss in the nightcap.

He singled twice, pirated second base in the third inning and was safe via another umpire's ruling as the Cards won the second game going away 8-4.

Ted Sizemore, however, walked on the same pitch as the second theft, and the 35-year-old outfielder was content to remain at No. 99.

"I can wait, I've got plenty of time," Brock said teasingly afterward to reporters who clustered at his locker in the Cards' clubhouse.

"It's you guys who are worried," he added, a twinkle in his eye. "You don't know when I'm going to be doing what I'm going to do."

Brock, by virtue of his steal, moved four from the NL career theft record of 738 set by the Pittsburgh Pirates' Max Carey in 1929.

After that it's only one more until he reaches the one-season majors standard of 104 set by Maury Wills, and Brock indicated he's visited long distance with the former Los Angeles Dodgers star.

"Maury's always been nice about my going after it," he said. "It's history versus what's new. One of the things this does is make Maury current again in people's minds."

Able to reach base in 32 of the Cards' 33 previous games during his record pursuits, Brock was blanked by the Expos' Tom Walker, Ernie McAnally and Dale Murray in the opener.

But in the nightcap, after retiring him on a lengthy fly ball, Montreal's Steve Rogers, 12-19, was greeted by a ringing hit off Brock's bat to start the third.

Brock waited until the count was 1-1 on Sizemore, then broke fast and was safe by a wide margin ahead of Expos catcher Barry Foote's throw.

"The most important thing is to be calm and give good, high-quality concentration on what you're doing," he confided.

"And never be afraid of getting thrown out," he added. "If a guy's afraid of getting thrown out he's never going to make it."

Slow-pitch play resumes tonight

The men's slow-pitch softball tournament, which was hampered over the Labor Day Weekend by rain, will resume tonight at 7 p.m. in Centennial Park.

AA-Used Cars meets Fischer's Concrete in the opener. Both teams have one loss. The winner of that game will take on Falstaff Over-the-Hill Gang at 8 p.m. in another elimination contest.

The two undefeated teams remaining in the 12-team tourney are the Jefferson City Stags and Schlitz Beer, who will square off at 7 p.m. Thursday.

The double-elimination tournament will conclude Thursday.

Kniewel spares nothing in his try at breaking the Snake River

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (AP) — The 200 toilets are in place, but the Sky-Cycle has yet to be painted skyward and the Evel Kniewel Museum is no more than an unpainted frame in a field of dust.

It is five days before Evel Kniewel attempts to hurl himself over the Snake River Canyon, and the curious are gathering. Richard Frederick, 23, and his 21-year-old wife, Jan, drove a day and a half from Mascoutah, Ill., and paid $25 each for the privilege of spending nights between now and Sunday in a former cow pasture.

"We've got a $200 bet that he makes it," Frederick says. "We've been planning to come ever since he said he'd jump the Grand Canyon a couple of years ago."

The 'he' on everyone's mind is a 34-year-old motorcycle stuntman from Butte, Mont., who has maneuvered himself into the deal of his lifetime, $6 million-plus to ride a needle-thin rocket over 1,400 feet of space. "Good luck Evel," reads the sign at a gas station. Tape on the side of a trailer from Arizona says, "Break the Snake."

For Evel himself, Tuesday — Launch Day minus 6, was a round of publicity gimmicks: pictures at the canyon at the edge of town, cocktail lounge theatrics and, at one point, an explosion of anger.

First a fast jet trip from Butte to Twin Falls in the company of tennis and golf hustler Bobby Riggs. Then by helicopter to the 38-acre launch site, where Kniewel examines the launch ramp and declares that everyone in the area should wear hard-hats. Then by car to his favorite haunt in Twin Falls, the lounge of the Blue Lakes Inn, where he buys the room a round to resounding applause.

The tab for the drinks is $431.90, peanuts compared to the millions Kniewel has already received for the Sept. 8 jump. Just to put more icing on the cake, Kniewel pauses in the motel to stage a bet with Riggs — $25,000 if the rabbit-faced gamester makes it from Las Vegas to Twin Falls on a tiny motorcycle by 4:30 p.m. EDT, the tentative time of the jump.

In the dimly lit lounge, Kniewel holds forth at a circular table. The mood is convivial until the object of all attention

Checking things out

Evel Kniewel (center) pays a visit to the steel ramp he'll use Sunday in an effort to jump the Snake River Canyon near Twin Falls, Idaho. The 108-foot long ramp sits at a 56-degree angle. The distance between the point of takeoff and the projected point of landing is 4,781 feet. Oh yes, there's the river which is 600 feet below the lip of the canyon. (AP Wirephoto) erupts suddenly at a man with an endorsement scheme. The outburst is angry, but brief, and within moments the party resumes. "This whole week is a party," says one associate.

As Evel entertains, engineers at the launch site tinker with the X-2 Sky-Cycle under the late afternoon sun. At the wire fence encircling the blast-off area stand young people with beer and cameras, some of the 50,000 people expected to be on hand by Sunday.

"It'll be a madhouse by then, but it'll be fun," declared Bud Brown, a motorcycle dealer from Topeka, Kan.

MU quarterbacks rejoin drills

By The Associated Press

Roster-juggling continued in Big Eight football camps Tuesday, with injury situations either improving or worsening for many clubs.

Missouri's first string quarterback, Ray Smith, returned for limited duty. He and backup quarterback Steve Pisarkiewicz injured ankles Aug. 24. Pisarkiewicz returned to action

Monday, but was excused from practice early Tuesday when his ankle began bothering him. Coach Al Onofrio said co-captain Scott Pickens' leg injury, sustained Monday, was not as bad as was first thought.

Kansas senior tight end Ken Saathoff was moved to wide receiver in the event flanker Bruce Adams, slowed since opening day of practice with a hamstring pull, is unable to open against Washington State. Junior Gregg Hosack moved up to Saathoff's spot. Junior John Scanlan replaced sophomore Terry Beeson at noseguard. Beeson suffered bruised ribs in Saturday's scrimmage. Steve Towle returned to his starting linebacker slot after sitting out two weeks with a knee injury.

Strong safety Joe Avanzini returned to practice with Oklahoma State following a two-week absence due to a pulled back muscle. Coach Jim Stanley ran his Cowboys through a two-hour drill with little contact work involved.

Kansas State worked on goal line offense, saying he was pleased with the effort shown by his Wildcats. He said that and pass protection were the two areas where his club needed the most work. Gibson said cornerback Henry Lige may be out for a month with a knee injury.

Iowa State worked out once Tuesday and will hold its final two-day session today before classes begin Thursday.

Nebraska went through light drills Tuesday in preparation for a heavy scrimmage this afternoon against formations the Cornhuskers are likely to see when they meet Oregon in their season-opener.

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer complained again Tuesday about the condition of his players, particularly his backs. He said they would be doing more running in the next few days. The club was to begin preparations today for their Sept. 14 opener against Baylor.

Colorado held its second scrimmage of the fall workouts Tuesday. The Buffaloes begin one-a-day practices today as classes start. Coach Bill Mallory said three players have decided to quit — tailback Terry Dahlberg, tight end Buck Arnold and lineman John Tremblay.

Royals farm club fast on its feet

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A Kansas City Royals spokesman said Tuesday the organization's San Jose Calif., farm club has ended its regular season with 373 stolen bases.

The spokesman said it is believed to be the most stolen bases in one season by any professional team since 1906 when Des Moines of the Western League had 389.

The San Jose club averaged 2.66 thefts per game. Leading the list was Sheldon Mallory, an outfielder who stole 72 bases before July 16 when he was called up to the Royals' Jacksonville, Fla., Class AA farm club.

Death sentence for American by Japanese

NAHA, Japan (AP) — A Japanese court today sentenced an American civilian to death for the murder of an American soldier.

Court officials said it was the first time since World War II that a Japanese court had given an American the death sentence.

The three-judge district court found Samuel L. Patterson, 40, of Lake Charles, La., guilty of the murder of Pvt. Gregory L. Scrivens, 20, of Warren, Ohio, in June 1973.

The trial began last November, and Patterson now has two weeks to appeal to a higher court. But his attorney said he did not know whether an appeal would be filed.

Presiding Judge Tsuneyoshi Ishida, in summing up the case before he read the sentence, said evidence and testimony given in the trial proved that Patterson and three American servicemen killed Scrivens after he told Army criminal investigation division agents about a plot to kidnap and kill an American who was in business in Okinawa.

Van Brocklin will call shots again

ATLANTA (AP) — Coach Norm Van Brocklin of the Atlanta Falcons said Tuesday he will again call offensive plays from the sidelines during the 1974 National Football League season.

"I will call the plays," he said. "And the logic is that a man who works at football 13 months of every year should know enough to call the right plays. That is our system."

Bob Lee again ranks as the No. 1 quarterback. He led the Falcons to seven straight victories at one stretch last year.

Lee was noncommittal about the Dutchman's decision.

Beatty returns to L.A. State

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Homer Beatty, who coached Los Angeles State to a college division national championship in 1964, has returned to the Diablos' football staff as defensive coordinator.

Beatty, who has served on the LA State faculty and as athletic director since quitting as head coach in 1965, joins the staff of new head coach Jim Williams, who was Beatty's offensive coordinator in the 1960s.

Competency hearing is granted

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — David Owen Brooks has been granted a Nov. 4 hearing to determine whether he is mentally competent to stand trial for the murder of four of the 27 victims in the Houston mass murder case.

At a pretrial session on Tuesday, District Court Judge William M. Hatten granted a request by counsel for the 19-year-old defendant and set the hearing for Nov. 4.

Brooks' attorney, Ted Musick, said his client is now sane. Dist. Atty. Carol Vance said the state will contend — based on the opinion of eight psychiatrists — that Brooks is able to help in his defense.

If a jury finds Brooks insane he would be placed in a mental hospital until he was able to stand trial.

Musick said if the jury finds his client sane, he will move for a change of venue and plead his client was temporarily insane at the time of the slayings.

Police said all 27 of the teen-aged males were the victims of a homosexual torture and murder ring headed by Dean A. Corll, 33, of suburban Pasadena.

Corll was shot by Elmer Wayne Henley, 19, another defendant in the case, on Aug. 8, 1973. The shooting was ruled self-defense.

Henley was found guilty in six of the deaths by a jury last July in San Antonio, where the case was moved on a change of venue. He was sentenced to 99 years in prison.

Police charge that Brooks and Henley lured their friends and neighbors to Corll's home, where they were homosexually raped, tortured and killed. After Corll's slaying, Brooks and Henley led officers to 27 bodies found buried in and around the Houston area.

Phils may lose pitcher Richert

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies say relief pitcher Pete Richert, hospitalized for a thrombosis of his pitching arm, may not be able to pitch again this season.

Dr. David Ginsberg, attending physician at Methodist Hospital here, said Tuesday he could not as yet determine whether the left-hander would recover quickly enough to take the mound again this year.

The Phillies said Richert, 34, who came to the club from St. Louis in June, would be hospitalized for about a week. A club spokesman said the pitcher's left arm swelled up Monday during a game against the Pirates in Pittsburgh.

McCarty takes college position

BUFFALO (AP) — John McCarthy, a former coach of the National Basketball Association Buffalo Braves, was named head basketball coach at Canisius College Tuesday.

McCarthy, 40, played in the NBA for seven years and was named coach of the Braves following the first game of their 1971-72 season. He was fired at the end of the season.

He succeeds John Morrison, who resigned two weeks ago to become assistant coach of the St. Louis Spirits of the American Basketball Association.

Add 10-round bout to card

The match will precede closed circuit television coverage of the 15-round world heavyweight title fight between George Foreman and Muhammad Ali.

Hagler is the undefeated New England middleweight champion. Riggs holds the Southern middleweight championship.
